Villages resume Magnus Farm talks today

by LYNN ASINOF

Mount Prospect and Arlington Heights officials today will resume talks on redrawing boundaries between the two villages near the 40-acre Magnus Farm property, to end a four-month stale-mate on a proposed boundary agreement.

Resumption of the talks was prompted by zoning problems at the northern end of the Magnus property, now a home for the elderly in an unincorporated part of Elk Grove Township south of Central Road.

Officials also will make a formal recommendation to the county to lower the zoning density of the property at the meeting.

ADMINISTRATION officials from both towns met in late June to discuss the development of a possible boundary agreement for the area located between Arlington Heights and Meier Roads north of Golf Road and south of Central Road.

Mount Prospect Mayor Robert D. Teichert said village board members rather than administration representatives will continue the boundary talks Saturday.

"It's one thing to talk about administrative things," Teichert said. "But there's political decisions to be made. I think boundary agreements always partake of political considerations."

Teichert said he is hopeful an agreement will be reached that will allow St. Cecilia Church to disannex from Arlington Heights and join Mount Prospect. Noting that the church uses Mount Prospect sewer and water service, Teichert said, "We ought to have boundaries that are commensurate with water and sewer services."

SINCE MOST of the church parish is in Mount Prospect, Teichert said he sees no reason why there should not be a disannexation particularly since the property does not affect the local tax base.

Arlington Heights officials at previous talks have rigorously opposed any such disannexation. The two communities have also disagreed over which town should eventually annex the Magnus Farm property, now being used as a home or the elderly.

Officials from both towns will meet at 9 a.m. Saturday at the Arlington Heights Municipal Buidding, 33 S. Arlington Heights Rd., Arlington Heights.

Discotheque must serve food

'Giraffe' liquor license OK urged

The Giraffe discotheque in the Brass Rail restaurant may be permitted to use the restaurant's liquor license if full food service is offered in the dancing room.

The public health and safety committee of the Arlington Heights Village Board adopted the position Friday after a meeting with the restaurant's attorney, Richard Cowen, and Village Atty. Jack M. Siegel.

The discotheque has been operating under a 30-day grace period granted by the village board after the question was raised whether the Giraffe is just an extension of the restaurant or a separate operation.

Siegel said he foresaw no problems about licensing if full meals were offered in the discotheque.

TRUSTEE ALICE HARMS, committee chairman, seconded the position. "I see it as the easiest solution to the current situation," she said.

The Giraffe, which opened in late September, is housed in an addition to the Brass Rail restaurant. Cowen said that while meals can be ordered in the dancing area, they are eaten in the restaurant proper.

The discotheque, featuring recorded music and a disc jockey, stays open an hour later than the restaurant operation.

Cowen said he had not discussed the possibility of serving food in the discotheque with the owners. He said he would before the next meeting of the committee, scheduled Oct. 30.

Cowen said he wants final action by the village board before the 30-day grace period expires.

Dryden Place negotiations collapse

Negotiations havebroken down between Nicholas Lattof and Arlington Heights officials over the purchase of a village street near Latoff's automobile agency.

Lattof, owner of Lattof Motors, wanted to purchase Dryden Place, a cutoff from Kensington Road and Dryden Avenue, to expand his automobile agency.

Village Mgr. L. A. Hanson said Lattof wants a refund of $60,000 he has deposited with the village for the street. According to Hanson Lattof objected to landscaping restrictions and other delays.

Hanson asked permission of the village board's legal committee to try to continue the negotiations with the car dealer.

"I want to see this thing salvaged. It's for the good of the community," Hanson said.

THE STREET, across from the Arlington Market shopping center, has been labeled a danger to motorists trying to avoid the four-way stop sign at the Dryden-Kensington intersection.

Hanson had said the purchase price was a good one and would eliminate a troublesome street.

Woman honored for heroism

Mrs. Dan Glassmaker, Schaumburg, has been awarded the Outstanding Citizen Award by the Rotary Club of Arlington Heights in recognition for her heroic act of helping save the life of 4-year-old Nicole Fanshier, Hoffman Estates.

Nicole had waded into a lake near her home to feed the ducks. When she floundered because of the water being too deep, her friend called for help, attracting the attention of Mrs. Glassmaker, who pulled Nicole from the water.

The award is the second of a series of such honors being granted by the Rotary Club to outstanding citizens of the area.

Lady jock (disc) keeps night people wide awake

by JOHN MAES

Jayne Neches enjoys talking to people.

And if you're one of the radio listeners who pays ear service to WYEN-FM between midnight and 6 a.m., Jayne is probably talking to you.

She's the all-night disc jockey for the Des Plaines radio outlet. Her graveyard gig engenders much more than the between-records weather report, reading a promotional spot or a blithe reference to an anecdote from the day's news.

While most of Northwest suburbia sleeps, the night studio at WYEN is no less a hotbox of activity than it is during the day, and Jayne's right in the middle of it. She's the only one who makes sure the records play, the news gets read and the inevitable flood of phone requests is taken.

THERE'S NO NEWS director around to oversee newscasts, nor secretaries to take anywhere from 150 to 200 requests that may come in from all over the Chicago area. As Jayne puts it, the daytime jocks "get a break that way."

But Jayne, 27, a dusky-complexioned brunette with Afro-styled hair and brown eyes, doesn't mind pulling yeoman's duty five nights a week as she's been doing for the last year. "I like it very much. I love music, and I love to be close to it," she says.

"But my father thinks I'm crazy because the pay's low and because of the hours."

Jayne, WYEN's first female disc jockey has a degree in English from the University of Wisconsin but said she just "sort of drifted" into the radio business after previous jobs in television casting in California and as secretary to the news and program director for WBBM-FM radio in Chicago.

On this night, the show just under way, Jayne explains how she's

Drug pusher's body found in area home

The mutilated body of a Chicago narcotics dealer was found Friday in the burned-out basement of a Rolling Meadows home. Fire investigators discovered the body of Donald Wedlow, a 32-year-old black, while investigating the cause of the fire early Friday at 950 N. Hicks Rd. Wedlow had been beaten and his throat and wrists slashed. State's attorneys believe the fire was set to cover the murder. Rolling Meadows police questioned several persons Friday but no arrests have been made. Police Chief Lewis R. Case said Wedlow apparently was using the house as a base for suburban drug trafficking. The victim was a known narcotics dealer with an arrest record, Case said.

THE BODY OF Donald Wedlow, a reputed narcotics dealer, is taken from a house at 950 N. Hicks Rd., Rolling Meadows. Wedlow's body was discovered after firemen extinguished a fire at the home early Friday. Officials believe the fire was set to cover up the murder.

National awards taken by Herald

The Herald is the recipient of five awards for editorial excellence to be presented today by the National Newspaper Assn. (NNA).

The awards include a first place in Best Sports Page category; second places in General Excellence and Sports Photography; third place in Best Feature; and Honorable Mention in Best Family Page. Four awards also were won by The Herald's sister publications, Paddock Circle Newspapers in Libertyville.

Present at the NNA's 90th annual convention in Las Vegas to accept the awards was Stuart R. Paddock Jr., president and publisher.

It was the second near sweep of a major newspaper contest by The Herald and its sister organization in recent weeks. The two groups won 11 awards in the Illinois Press Assn. contest announced Sept. 19; in that contest The Herald placed first in general excellence among all dailies in Illinois, the Paddock Circle placed first in general excellence among all large weekly newspapers.

The weeklies' awards received today include a first for Best Editorial Page, second for Sports Page; third for Sports Photography; and Honorable Mention for Best Feature Story.

Paddock newspapers dominated two NAA categories, with the dailies winning first place and the weeklies second in Best Sports Page, the dailies winning second and the weeklies third in Sports Photography.

Correction

A typographical error in Friday's Herald resulted in incorrect information about the scheduled time of a county zoning preview session for Maine, Wheeling and Palatine townships.

The preview session at which interested citizens may view changes on zoning maps for the unincorporated areas of those three townships will be Oct. 31 at 1 p.m. in the Rolling Meadows City Hall, 3600 Kirchoff Rd.

A public hearing for citizens to comment on the maps a final time before the County Zoning Board makes its decisions will be Nov. 6 at 10 a.m. in Room 569 of the County Building, 118 N. Clark St., Chicago.

Default averted at last minute

New York wins reprieve; teachers help pay debt

NEW YORK (UPI) — New York City was saved from financial default Friday by the reluctant agreement of city teachers to bankroll the "Big Apple" with $150 million in pension funds two hours before $453 million in debts fell due.

"We were put in a box where we were the only ones who could save the city," said Albert Shanker, president of the teachers union. "No one else was coming forward to save the city."

Mayor Abraham Beame, meeting with reporters nearly two hours after Shanker agreed to the bailout plan, said he was "very pleased" to have Shanker go along but he warned that the financing put together Friday would carry the city only through early December.

"We must have federal help, a guarantee, not a handout — not money," Beame said.

"We can't live in this continual crisis. The federal government must recognize its responsibility," he added.

The agreement by the teachers to pour another $150 million into the city's depleted treasury came shortly before an expected announcement of default at 3 p.m. Chicago time. The teachers' pension money was needed to make up the difference between what the city had and what it owed at the moment.

But Gov. Hugh L. Carey warned the city's crisis was not over. He said New York now has enough money to pay its bills only to the end of the year. He once again appealed to President Ford.

"By exhausting all of its resources, New York can meet its obligations until Dec. 1," Carey said in a telegram to Ford. "After then the welfare of our citizens rests in the hands of our federal government. I seek your cooperation and leadership."

For several hours Friday, default appeared imminent, sending ripples through the world financial community, scaring individual bondholders and New York City bankers, and threatening the paychecks of some city workers.

Economists in London warned that default would hurt the dollar abroad.

New York Stock Exchange prices dropped 10 points, according to the Dow Jones industrial index, but recovered much of the loss when default was averted.

Trading in the bonds of other cities and states slowed to a near standstill, and even the prices of the most creditworthy bonds fell initially.

One New York bank, Irving Trust, said it would not cash city payroll checks unless they were drawn on an account held by the bank itself. The city ordered the sanitation department to halt issuing weekly payroll checks, but most had already been delivered.

The Federal Reserve said it would provide emergency loans to New York banks whose solvency would be threatened by default. The city's banks have invested billions in city and state bonds and notes and default would reduce their value substantially.

Ford rules out Federal aid

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Ford has ruled out federal help to prevent New York City's financial collapse because he believes the nation's largest city can solve its own problems, the White House said Friday.

"I can say flatly that the President will not take action to prevent a New York City default," Press Secretary Ron Nessen said.

Asked about federal intervention in the past to rescue cities and states in times of emergency, Nessen said:

"This is not a natural disaster or an act of God," Nessen said. "It is a self-inflicted act by the people who have been running New York City."

In late afternoon, after the crisis had passed, Nessen declined to say whether Ford was pleased. Despite repeated questions, he would say only that "the President's reaction is that he feels New York City and New York State have the means to clean up the financial mess . . . and to live within the city's means for a change."

Nessen said the President is sympathetic with the people of New York "whose leaders should have done a better job" in handling the city's financial affairs during previous years.

Ford's opposition to federal aid for New York is not based on any "philosophical or moral" reasons, Nessen explained, but on his belief that he lacks legal authority to provide assistance and does not believe stop-gap measures would do any real good.

Patty asked to join SLA: reports

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Patricia Hearst began her conversion to the Symbionese Liberation Army even while she was still blindfolded after her kidnaping and asked to participate in the group's sexual activities willingly a short time later, it was reported Friday.

Two newspaper quoted documents found in the SLA San Francisco hideout where she was captured last month. SLA "soldiers" Emily and William Harris were seized the same day.

The heiress is scheduled to appear in federal court in San Francisco Wednesday for a report by psychologists and psychiatrists on whether she is mentally competent to stand trial and what part "brain washing" may have played in her behavior.

The Harrises pleaded "not guilty" in a Los Angeles county Court Friday to 11 criminal charges and the judge in the case acidly refused to disqualify himself from the trial on a defense accusation that he was prejudiced against them.

Miss Hearst is a co-defendant in the case but she was not present. She is being held in San Francisco on federal bank robbery charges.

The Los Angeles Times said the documents indicated that the 21-year-old Patty entered into sexual relationships not only with men but also women. It said the SLA first suspected her of putting on an act to secure her release but later enthusiastically accepted her as one of them.

The San Francisco Examiner said that after the blindfold was removed Miss Hearst was offered the opportunity to "walk freely out of the door" and return to her family but that she declined.

"She seized on every opportunity to learn," the copyright article in the Examiner said.

The Los Angeles Times story said the behavior of "Tania" became an inspiration to the group.

Included in the documents, the Times said, were what appeared to be answers to questions submitted to the SLA by an unnamed person.

One of the first questions to confront the SLA after Miss Hearst was kidnaped, one of the documents indicated, was the degree of sexual freedom to be given her.

Before the kidnaping, the group had abandoned monogamy relationships and had begun to have open sex with persons not limited to the opposite sex. The writer said this resulted out of practicality, not a sexual revolution.

Mrs. Peron ignores threats

President Isabel Peron, ignoring threats of leftist violence, lashed out at Argentina's guerrilla violence at a mammoth rally of her supporters Friday. The Montoneros, renegade leftist Peronists, threatened to "execute" anyone who attended the Plaza de Mayo rally to hear the president's speech. But a crowd unofficially estimated by police at 65,000 drum-thumping, slogan shouting celebrants jammed the broad square opposite the Casa Rosada presidential palace in defiance of the threat. Five noise bombs went off in the Plaza in downtown Buenos Aires about an hour before Mrs. Peron's Loyalty Day speech from the Casa Rosada balcony.

UN panel raps Zionism

The General Assembly's Social Humanitarian and Cultural Committee passed a strong anti-Zionist resolution Friday night over fierce American, European and Israeli opposition. The vote was 70-29, with 27 abstentions. The committee made its decision after voting down a motion by Sierra Leone to defer the vote on the resolution until next year. Other attempts to stall the vote at least until Monday were defeated by the Arab cosponsors of the resolution and their supporters. In its main paragraph, the resolution "determines that Zionism is a form of racism and racial discrimination." The United States denounced the resolution as "an obscene act." Israel rejected it as "blatant anti-semitism." But Arab delegates insisted that the resolution was not directed against Judaism and religion, but against a "nationalist and racist" Jewish State.

U.S. sues cigaret makers

The Justice Department Friday charged in civil damage suits that the six largest American cigaret manufacturers have failed to place required health warnings in all cigarette advertising. The suits filed in U.S. District Court here seek unspecified damages for not properly displaying notices that say: "Warning: The Surgeon General Has Determined That Cigaret Smoking is Dangerous to Your Health."

HUD to subsidize low interest mortgage rates

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Housing Secretary Carla Hills said Friday the government will provide subsidies to reduce mortgage interest rates to 5 per cent for home-buyers earning about $200 a week in after-tax pay.

Mrs. Hills, who announced the policy change at her first news conference since becoming secretary of Housing and Urban Development eight months ago, said the program to begin in January will be an important stimulus to the housing industry by spring.

It will triple the number of ourses for sale at moderate prices and help reduce depression-level unemployment rates among home construction workers, she said.

Mrs. Hills said there are fewer than 60,000 homes on the market now at selling costs of $30,000 or less, the price range most attractive to working class and newly married people.

The medican income program will enable families earning $9,000 t $11,000 a year to buy new homes or substantially rehabilitated older homes at subsidized mortgage interest ates as low as 5 per cent.

Down payment requirements would be about $1,500 to $2,000.

These families have been shut out of the current market with home prices soaring near $40,000 and interest rates of 9.5 per cent.

Mrs. Hills said a majority of the eligible people would be subsidized for only a few years before working out of the program as their incomes rise.

Although the cost to the government will be only $264 million in two years, Mrs. Hills said it would stimulate about $6.5 billion in new construction.

The mortgages eligible for subsidies could be no higher than $28,800 for a large family in high cost urban areas like Chicago or $21,600 for new homes for small famlies in lower cost rural areas.

Kissinger on way to China mission

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger headed for China Friday, undertaking for President Ford a groundwork diplomatic mission similar to the one he performed for Richard M. Nixon in 1971.

This time, though, there are significant differences in the situation. Kissinger is performing publicly, whereas his trip for Nixon was carried out in strictest secrecy. And the two top Chinest leaders with whom Nixon conferred are ailing and not expected to meet with Kissinger.

In any case, administration sources expressed hope that a new breakthrough in Sino-Soviet relations can spring from Kissinger's preparatory work and Ford's visit expected some time after Thanksgiving.

Kissinger, flying to Peking by way of Tokyo, is scheduled to spend five days in the Chinese capital starting Sunday. Administration officials expect no dramatic developments, since the primary aim is to build on the amity established during and after Nixon's trip.

Nixon, opening up a dialogue with the Communist Chinese government after a quarter-century of diplomatic chill, dealt primarily with party chairman Mao Tse-tung and Premier Chou En-lai.

Mao now is reported suffering the effects of age. He's 82 now and Chou, 77, is ailing. Both have sharply curtailed their activities, and administration sources said Kissinger is expected to deal with other Peking officials.

At a private dinner in Ottawa Tuesday, Kissinger was overheard saying Cou is "very ill and I think he's dying."

Sources said the secretary will explore possibilities for Sino-American cooperation beyond the diplomtic, trade, cultural and other ties established as a result of Nixon's visit.

Kissinger also will have the opportunity to take a new reading on relations between Peking and Moscow which — from all the evidence — have improved to a considerable extent over the last four years.

American shares Nobel prize in physics with two Danes

STOCKHOLM, Sweden (UPI) — An American and two Danes won the 1975 Nobel prize in physics Friday for their nuclear research and an Australian and a Swiss shared the chemistry award for simplifying production of biological medicines.

Five Americans have been given Nobel prizes so far this year, one in economics, three in medicine and one in physics. Friday's physics prize went to American James Rainwater of Columbia University in New York City and Danes Aage Bohr and Ben Mottelson for their discovery that the atomic nucleus is not always round, but an also be egg-shaped. This has helped to understand the fusion process and the division of the atmic nucleus.

John Warcup Cornforth, 58, a deaf Australian working in England since 1939, and Vladimir Prelog, 69, a native of Yugoslavia, but nw a Swiss national, were honored for their work on enzyme reactions and research into organic molecules and reactions.

The prices were awarded by the Swedish Academy of Sciences. The five scientists will get equal shares of the combined $286,000 prize money for the two awards with their Nobel diplomas at ceremonies in Stockholm Dec. 10.

Rainwater, 58, works at the Physics Department of Columbia University.

Bohr, 53, works at the Niels Bohr institute in Copenhagen named after his famed father winner of the 1922 Nobel physics prize for his investigation of the structure of atoms.

Kleppe Ford's new interior secretary

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Thomas S. Kleppe was sworn in as interior secretary Friday and promised President Ford he would fill that long-vacant, controversial job with a determination to turn America's natural resource problems into accomplishments.

Kleppe, a former Republican congressman who has been serving as head of the Small Business Administration, took the oath of office from Justice Potter Stewart during a jovial ceremony that brought several hundred people to the East Room of the White House.

$100,000 housing study blocked

GOP wins round in county spending control battle

by ANNE SLAVICEK
and AL MESSERSCHMIDT

Republican county commissioners have won a round in their battle to force tighter controls on spending federal money for low-and moderate-income housing in the suburbs.

State's Atty. Bernard Carey stated Friday in a letter to Comr. Mary McDonald that a recent 10-to-6 vote to hire a consultant on distributing federal housing money was not a valid appropriation of money.

Carey's opinion points to a two-thirds vote requirement to appropriate more than $2,500 or spend more than $5,000, and says 11 votes out of the 16-member County Board would be needed for the appropriation.

THE SIX suburban votes blocked approval of spending $100,000 to hire Real Estate Research Corp. to collect data and analyze possible projects for a committee of suburban mayors.

The mayors make up the Cook County Community Development Advisory Council, a group which developed a housing assistance plan for the county and which makes recommendations to the County Board about how federal money under the Community Development Act of 1974 should be spent in suburban areas.

The mayors wanted the consultant to study various projects in communities throughout the county as eligible for a share of the federal money.

Locally only Palatine, Wheeling, Schaumburg and Rolling Meadows and unincorporated areas are eligible for a share of the federal funds. Other local communities are either larger than the 50,000 population limit to particiate in the urban county or have formally "opted out" of the urban county to avoid any county-enforced housing plan.

SUBURBAN COUNTY Board members fear the consultant will ignore the wishes of elected suburban officials and residents in unincorporated areas in making recommendations.

Comr. Carl Hansen Friday said he wouldn't object to the mayors' council having help. He said, however, he wants the contract with the consultant to spell out requirements that elected municipal councils, rather than hired managers, provide the local input into the housing plan. Moreover, Hansen said he wants assurances that residents of unincorporated areas and township officials will be consulted about projects in unincorporated areas, instead of just relying on input from county officials.

Hansen said with Carey's opinion he saw no reason for the Republican commissioners to bring up the issue of hiring Real Estate Research Corp. at Monday's board meeting. If county Democrats want approval for hiring the firm they will probably have to modify the contract, he said.

Mary McDonald Friday called Carey's letter her "greatest victory." She said the issue was a test of the suburban commissioners' effectiveness.

COUNTY BOARD Pres. George Dunne Friday was unavailable for comment. But Terry Hansen, an aide to Dunne, said his understanding of Dunne's position was that the appropriation for the consultant was approved. He said he knew of no letter from Carey to the board which would invalidate the approval.

Hansen said the mayor's council met Friday morning and "strongly reiterated its wish that the Real Estate Research Corp. be authorized to collect data and provide analysis" for the group.

Hansen said more than half the mayors on the council were at the meeting, although neither Wheeling nor Schaumburg mayors who sit on the council were represented.

STEVEN LENET, Palatine planning and zoning administrator, represented Palatine Village Pres. Wendell E. Jones at the meeting.

Comr. Carl Hansen was critical of the mayor's group for approving the resolution without first talking to the suburban county board commissioners. He said the suburban commissioners weren't notified of the meeting of the mayors' council and weren't asked to explain their opposition to the mayors.

The fight over the contract for the housing consultant is one of two recent moves by the suburban commissioners to use their sixth vote to block total domination of the board by Democratic city commissioners. The Republicans also are expected to veto a $2 million county donation to the CTA when it comes to the board for approval.

Former governor's race track conviction

Kerner pardon delay may waive

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Justice Dept. said Friday that Otto Kerner, former governor of Illinois who was paroled from prison last March, must wait five years to be eligible for a pardon — but it agreed to consider waiving this delay.

Kerner, 66, was convicted — after becoming a federal appellate judge — of committing bribery, fraud, tax evasion, conspiracy and making false statements to the Internal Revenue Service while governor.

Prssident Ford has unlimited pardon powers under the Constitution, but the Kennedy administration adopted regulations to guide the attorney general and U.S. pardon attorney in submitting requests for pardons to the White House.

THE REGULATIONS, still in force, require a five-year wait after leaving prison if violations concern narcotics, income tax or perjury laws, "or violation of public trust involving personal dishonesty . . ." Other felons must wait three years.

But the Justice Dept. said the regulations authorize the attorney general to waive the waiting period at his discretion.

The department first said Kerner would have to file a separate application for a waiver. A spokesman later said staff members belatedly discovered a separate waiver application enclosed with Kerner's pardon application.

Atty. Gen. Edward H. Levi will review it as a separate application, the spokesman said. He said the decision that Kerner is ineligible without a waiver still stands. He would not speculate whether Levi will grant the waiver.

THE CHARGES against Kerner grew out of an alleged racetrack deal. Following his conviction Kerner entered the Federal Correctional Institution at Lexington, Ky., on July 29, 1974.

Kener was denied parole last Jan. 15 and his case was continued until January, 1976. But the medical report from the U.S. Bureau of Prisons triggered emergency parole action.

The bureau reported Kerner appeared to have lung cancer requiring immediate surgery and the Appellate Parole Board reconsidered and granted him freedom last March 6.

Jockeying of funds seen for schools

by WANDALYN RICE

Chicago Democrats working for overrides of Gov. Daniel Walker's education vetoes may try to persuade the Illinois General Assembly to borrow money from specialized state accounts to pay for funding increases, State Sen. David Regner, R-Mount Prospect, predicted Friday.

Regner, a member of the legislature's Economic and Fiscal Commission, said the commission's own budget projections indicate the state may be worse off on June 30, 1976. This is earlier than a prediction by Gov. Daniel Walker and State Comptroller George Lindberg.

Both Lindberg, a Republican, and Walker, a Democrat, have opposed any attempt to override the budget cuts Walker made in the state school aid budgets last spring. The cuts total about $100 million, with $81 million coming in the general school aid formula which goes to all state school districts.

CHICAGO DEMOCRATS actively have been working for overrides of the governor's vetoes in order to increase income for the Chicago public schools. The city's schools face a budget deficit as a result of the cuts and a recent contract settlement with the teacher's union.

Walker has said the state cannot afford the veto overrides because the state will have a budget surplus of just $115 million by June 30, the end of the fiscal year.

Regner said, however, the Economic and Fiscal Commissions figures indicate the state may have an actual deficit of $59 million by June 30.

Regner said the estimate is "very conservative" and is based on the assumption the state's revenue will not increase next spring because of an economic upturn. Other estimates assume that economic recovery actually will increase the amount of revenue the state will receive.

Because of the Economic and Fiscal Commission report, Chicago Democrats "just won't be able to say the state has the money" when they urge an override of the governor's education vetoes when the legislature reconvenes Wednesday, Regner said.

INSTEAD REGNER said he expects those urging the override to suggest special legislation. This will allow the state's general fund, which pays for education aid, to borrow from other state funds, including grade crossing, fire protection and road funds.

The last time such inter-fund borrowing occurred in state government, Regner said, was under the administration of Gov. Otto Kerner. "It was right after that we went to the income tax," he said. "That's what really worries me."

Regner opposes any override of the governor's vetoes.

Hearings set for racing dates

The Illinois Racing Board will have hearings on 1976 racing dates at Illinois tracks Nov. 20, 21, and 22, it was announced Friday.

The board will hear proposals from as many as 75 applicants who have taken out the forms needed to request racing dates, racing secretary William Masterson said. No applications have been filed yet. Masterson said he expects most applications to be filed just before the Oct. 31 deadline.

Racing dates for Arlington Park Race Track this year were from June 9 to Sept. 25.

TEACHERS WALKED the picket lines while parents and substitutes tried to keep law and order in school Friday. Two teachers at Fairview School, where no teachers reported for work, carry signs typical of those seen throughout the district. Teachers refused the school board's offer of a 9.4 per cent salary increase at a morning meeting Friday and decided to go out on strike.

Board seeks injunction

Dist. 54 teachers strike; 17,000 pupils to be idle

by PAM BIGFORD
and KATHERINE BOYCE

Teachers in Schaumburg Township Dist. 54 went on strike Friday after contract talks failed.

The strike action against the state's largest elementary district is expected to close school to 17,000 students Monday.

The Dist. 54 Board of Education was unable to obtain a court injunction Friday to stop the strike, but will try again Monday.

"We have determined that unless the teachers are back at work Monday, the schools will be closed," said Milton Derr, Dist. 54 associate superintendent.

Derr said the board's lawyer would not be able to get a court injunction against the striking teachers until Monday. Lawyers were unable to file for the injunction Friday because of the amount of required paper work.

THE BOARD has said it will not resume negotiations while the teachers are on strike, so no weekend bargaining is foreseen. However, the board has scheduled an executive session to review the situation at 10 a.m. today, and the union has tentatively scheduled a meeting for Sunday at 4 p.m.

Teachers struck Friday morning after all-night negotiation sessions Thursday failed to settle their salary dispute. Teachers overwhelmingly rejected the board's offer of a 9.39 per cent increase, up from 9.1 per cent, and stuck to their proposal of a 12.9 per cent raise.

Teachers on the picket lines reported the union made an informal offer to lower their salary request to 11 per cent, but the board rejected the offer.

The board responded to the strike by passing a two-point resolution by a 4-to-3 vote:

• Any teacher not appearing for work shall be sent a notice that charges will be filed against him seeking his dismissal.

• A court injunction will be sought to get the teachers back into the classrooms.

About 900 teachers work in Dist. 54, and about 600 are union members. The union claimed 87 per cent of all teachers either picketed or stayed away from school.

Referring to the board's plans to dismiss striking teachers, Union Pres. Arthur Neil said, "That (firing) means you have to have a hearing on each teacher. That means you have to interview to get 700 people — quality people. Will this be the first school district in history to fire 700 people?

"Will the community stand for, in the administration's words, a 'good, top quality education' being sacrificed because the teachers stand up for what they believe?" he asked.

Neil said the four board members who voted to pass the resolution "have closed off more doors for a settlement. The teachers are reacting to those four people. There are three sensible board members, and if they could get a swing vote we wouldn't be out on strike today."

Teachers picketed at all schools Friday. Derr said 249, about 27 per cent, of the district's 941 teachers were in their classrooms.

ONLY TWO SCHOOLS, Eisenhower and Frost junior highs, were closed at noon because of a severe lack of staff. Keller and Addams junior highs were dismissed a half hour early, Derr said.

Student teachers, cafeteria personnel, mothers and 110 substitute teachers filled in for missing teachers.

Derr said although only the two schools were closed, the office of the county superintendent of schools declared Friday a non-attendance day and prevented the district from receiving state aid for that day. He said most students attended school.

Marvin Lapicola, assistant superintendent for finances, said the district receives about $100,000 per day in state aid. He said teacher salaries for one day amount to about $40,000.

Some citizens are reported to be circulating petitions in support of the board's position.

BOARD MEMBERS Friday reacted to the strike:

• Board Pres. Dr. Edgar Feldman, who voted for the resolution, said dismissal action against teachers will be sought if they do not return to class. "There will be no negotiations with teachers who are committing an illegal act," Feldman said. He has consistently said mediation would prevent the board from doing its duty as elected salary negotiators.

Feldman said he has received "numerous threatening telephone calls and I have been followed."

• Board negotiator Gordon Thoren, who voted in favor of the resolution, said he "felt it was appropriate and proper." Thoren said he remains opposed to mediation because "the two parties can solve their problems themselves." He said he supports stopping negotiations until the teachers stop striking.

"We moved on money and their all-important salary index and their response was a strike. Our 9.4 per cent offer was given to them with good intent. The manner in which it was accepted does not allow me to say if the offer still stands."

• Edward Bedard said he blames the union leadership for the strike rather than the average teacher. "It is the self-seeking union leaders who are the only ones to have something to gain by this strike." He said the good rapport of teachers and the board is "washed down the tubes."

In Rolling Meadows

Beaten, slashed body of drug pusher found

by JOE SWICKARD
and JILL BETTNER

The mutilated body of a Chicago narcotics dealer was found Friday in the burned-out basement of a Rolling Meadows house.

Fire investigators discovered the body of Donald Wedlow, 32, badly beaten and his throat slashed, while attempting to determine the cause of the fire that struck the house at 950 N. Hicks Rd. early Friday morning.

State's attorneys theorize the fire, fed by heating oil, was set in the basement of the white frame house to cover up the crime.

THE ROLLING Meadows Fire Dept. was called to the scene about 2:30 a.m. Friday. The fire was struck before it could spread to upper levels of the house.

When investigators returned Friday noon to the house, in Rolling Meadows' northern industrial park, Wedlow's body was found in a basement room.

Wedlow, a black, was lying on his back with his wrists and throat slashed. Although the body was fully clothed, his pants had been partially pulled down below his waist.

The Cook County Coroner's office said the victim's ribs were broken in addition to his other wounds.

Police Chief Lewis R. Case said Wedlow, married and living on Chicago's far North Side, was a known narcotics dealer with an arrest record. Case said Wedlow allegedly had been selling drugs in the suburbs recently.

WEDLOW WAS apparently using the house as a base of his suburb illicit drug traffic, Case said. He had been using the house sporadically for about a month, reportedly as a guest of its owner, Case said.

The owner's name was not released by police.

Three or four persons, believed to be involved with Wedlow in drug deals, were questioned late Friday by Rolling Meadows police.

No names were revealed by Case.

THE HOUSE, with peeling white paint, is set in a large lot well back from Hicks Road. The side yards are screened by a stand of apple trees and a vineyard.

There are several outbuildings and a garage on the property, but they were empty when searched by police.

Although it backs up to a residential area, the lot is separated from the nearest house by about 100 yards.

Workers crowded to the windows of nearby offices as police cars and the ambulance arrived at the scene.

The murder was the fourth in Rolling Meadows' 20-year history. Young Pamela and Debbie Edfors were bludgeoned to death in their home in February, 1973. Sharon Soyka, 17, was shot to death by her boyfriend, Israel Pequeno, in March, 1973.

Dist. 23 salary package vote scheduled Monday

Teachers and board members in Prospect Heights Dist. 23 will meet separately Monday to vote on a recently-approved salary package for 1975-76.

Teachers were scheduled to vote on the package this week, but requested more time to study the merit and across-the-board raises proposed in the settlement reached Saturday, said Kenneth Bates, spokesman for the teacher negotiating team.

Bates would not reveal the terms of the settlement, but hinted that the settlement was closer to the teachers' demands for a $106,500 monetary increase by saying Saturday "I think we're going to have an easier time selling it to our people than they (the board) will."

PRIOR TO THE tentative agreement, board members had offered a $85,000 increase in merit and across-the-board raises. Teachers unanimously turned that down Sept. 24.

The two teams have been meeting since February. Negotiators previously agreed to several contract items including district reimbursement for professional fees, increased extra-duty and summer school pay, sick leave accumulation and professional travel allocation. Both sides also agreed to a new starting salary of $8,950, a 6 per cent increase over the current base pay of $8,400.

Both sides agreed Saturday to a mini-grant program, which will cost the district $1,000. Bates said teachers will be able to apply for up to $100 to finance special projects from the fund, administered by the superintendent's advisory committee.

There will be no visitation. Services and interment will be private at the convenience of the family.

Negotiators reach accord

Striking auto mechanics to vote on pact Sunday

Striking auto mechanics will vote Sunday on a tentative contract settlement after negotiators for the International Assn. of Machinists and area auto dealers reached agreement early Friday.

Ratification on the pact would end a 15-week strike which began July 2 when the mechanics' two-year contract expired.

The 3,500 workers objected to new work rules which included the elimination of a 50-per cent share in labor charges after 40 hours work.

The members of Local 701 will vote from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. Sunday. The results will be released later Sunday, according to union officials. Terms of the agreement are being withheld pending the outcome of the vote.

AUTO MECHANICS walked off their jobs July 2, many of them checking in early in the morning and punching out a few minutes later. Many of them said they were ill.

Some motorists were left stranded during the July 4 holiday because the cars they left for repair in dealers' shops remained untouched. The strike has resulted in good business for private auto repair shops which picked up the repair work.

Several negotiating sessions were held in the three months with the union rejecting all contract offers Meanwhile, many auto dealers signed separate contracts with their employes, causing a rift in the union. Auto dealers still being struck also were upset because their competitors were serving customers while their workers were on the picket lines.

The break in the strike came at 3:45 a.m. Friday after an all-night bargaining session. If the contract is ratified, mechanics will be back on the job early Monday.

Oswald and James Jacoby will help you hold a winning hand in "WIN AT BRIDGE", appearing daily in the HERALD.

Escapee 'could be out of the city'

Federal agents and police searched for fugitive convict Dennis D. Hunter in Chicago Friday — one week after he broke out of a maximum security federal penitentiary — but the FBI said he might be thousands of miles away.

"Quite frankly, we don't know where he is," an FBI spokesman said. Another FBI agent said, "We have nothing to go on . . . he could be out of the city by now."

Hunter, 23, a convicted kidnaper from Salem, Ohio, vanished Thursday in the obscurity of the city after eluding two downstate dragnets and forcing a truck driver, under threat of death, to bring him to Chicago.

FBI agents and police for hours Thursday night and Friday knocked on doors, passed out man-wanted fliers and quizzed pedestrians in a search of a predominantly Latin-populated, near Northwest Side area where the fugitive jumped from the truck.

Illinois briefs

'Cop admitted killing'

Former Belleville policeman Fred Roark was overheard to say he did not mean to kill his stepdaughter and that he did not intend to get her pregnant.

Don Martindale, 19, of Belleville, testifying at Roark's trail on murder charges, said he was working in a pancake house the night of June 9, 1974, when he over heard Roark, drunk and crying, say "I didn't mean to get her pregnant. I didn't mean to kill her."

Roark, 33, is charged in the shooting death of his stepdaughter, Sabrina Cain, 19, who disappeared Feb. 5, 1974. Miss Cain's body was found 10 weeks later in a pond.

Gas prices down slightly

Gasoline prices continued to hold fairly steady, showing only slight decreases and increases in northern Indiana, the Chicago Motor Club reported.

The slight downward trend was noted for both regular and premium gas in Chicago and Cook County, Illinois, and for regular grade gasoline in downstate Illinois and northern Indiana. The only price increase in the current report was noted for premium grade gas in northern Indiana.

Blood fats must be cut to protect heart

The doctor says
by Lawrence E. Lamb

My husband recently learned he has too many triglycerides in his blood. His count was 316.

We can't find much information on triglycerides and wondered if you could help us. What is the difference between triglycerides and cholesterol, since they are both fatty substances? Also, where could we get more information concerning triglycerides? He is on a no sugar, no starch, and no fried foods diet.

I get that question often. No wonder since heart and vascular disease is the most common serious disease we have in our culture.

Cholesterol is a waxy substance from the bile. It is not really a fat. It has a yellowish mushy consistency. It is transported with fat (trigycerides) into the artery wall. A greater amount of cholesterol than fat remains in the wall and causes the cholesterol deposits that cause heart and vascular disease in man.

Triglycerides are simply fats. The fat you eat is usually made up of fatty acids connected to glycerol (glycerine). Three fatty acids connected to glycerol is a triglyceride. That is what you find in animal fat and most vegetable fats. Look on the food labels now appearing and you will see the terms monoglyceride, diglyceride and triglyceride. That means one, two or three fatty acids attached to the glycerine. It is all fat, and that is what you want to know.

The fatty acids can be saturated fat or unsaturated fat. The cholesterol, fat (triglycerides), and a blood protein combine to form a soluble substance in the bloodstream called a lipoprotein.

I am writing about my son. He has erythropoietic protoporphria. It was not daignosed accurately until he joined the Marines when he was 18. He was medically discharged after 40 days of hospital examinations and is now going to school at the university.

I understand this is a metabolic disease and part of the problem is an allergy to the sun. I am wondering if anything in the nature of a diet could improve the condition.

Life without the sun is not an easy adjustment, and I'm wondering if he should have some type of vitamin supplement.

Yes, that is a rare disease all right. It was only described a short time ago. It belongs to a group of disorders involving pigment formation in the body. The pigment in the type of disorder your son has is caused by excessive pigment formation by the liver and a small amount from the formation of red cells.

The form he has causes what might at first appear as an intense, sudden reaction to the sun, with reddening and swelling of the exposed areas. Prolonged exposure can lead to an eczema-like appearance which gradually heals and may even leave scarring.

I am happy to tell you that this form of porphyria usually doesn't cause any serious disability nor affect the outlook for life expectancy. So, you son should live a healthy, normal life — except if he wants to protect his skin he will have to avoid the sun.

I am less happy to tell you that this is the only treatment other than symptomatic measures when sun exposure causes problems. There are no special diets nor any benefits from supplements or extra vitamins.

Tin-glazed ware known by several names

"Earthenware with a tin glaze" is the simplified way it is described in some books on antiques, but to get a bit more technical, it is earthenware made of slightly porous clay. Over this is applied a glaze made of tin oxide and silicate, which makes an opaque whitish enamel finish, applied in a liquid state by brush or by dipping the entire piece into the glaze. The wares are then decorated with various colors (often blue and white) and fired.

The result is a high gloss, glassy surface, usually quite thinly glazed so that the body of the clay may show through. The glaze has the tendency to chip easily, and one often sees imperfect pieces for this reason. The chips don't seem to be quite so detrimental as they might be on porcelain or finer china, because they are so characteristic, but that's a matter of opinion and taste.

NOW I'VE DESCRIBED it, what is it? It is Delft, or Faience, or Majolica, depending on which country makes it. Warren E. Cox, in "The Book of Pottery and Porcelain," uses the term "Delft" and calls it the "Faience of the Netherlands." George Savage in "18th Century German Porcelain" gives this definition: "Pottery having a glaze made opaque with tin oxide is Faience when it has been made in Germany and France. The same made in Italy is Majolica, and that made in Holland and England is Delft." Most collectors and dealers divide tin-glazed wares according to Savage.

Majolica was first made by the Italians and later, copied extensively. Actually, the Italians had copied it much much earlier from the Persians. Majolica is a tin-glazed earthenware. So is Quimper, that pleasant peasant pottery of France (it is pronounced "kampair"). In fact, most tin-glazed wares are "peasant" looking.

THE DELFT WARE often shows scenes in blue and white of Holland, with windmills, birds and flowers. Not all Delft is blue and white, however, for later it was made with many colors, or polychrome, in yellow, brown, black, orange, green, etc. Some has an almost Oriental look, which isn't surprising when we remember that almost all pottery, porcelain and earthenware was copied at some time in history from the East, hence the name "china" as a genre description.

In France, as Savage says in his book, the ware is called Faience (fay-ahnz) and some names to look for on backstamps are Luneville and Sarreguemines, both very old potteries still in business. But much Faience is not marked, especially the older pieces, such as that shown in the picture, which is a rare type. This is a mid-18th century long oval tureen, decorated with floral sprays of transparent green enamel (Picture from Newspaper Enterprise Assn.).

ANY TIN-GLAZED earthenware is fun to collect, as it is so colorful, distinctive and of such diversity that one can find almost any color or shape to please the fancy.

Even though tin-glazed wares have been known for centuries, those you see at shops and shows are generally of the early 1900s. A piece of the mid-18th century pottery would be considered in the museum class and would be very expensive, possibly several hundred dollars.

America has the most famous and popular Majolica among collectors, made by Griffin, Smith and Hill Company of Phoenixville, Pa., from 1880 to 1892. Some experts argue that this is not true Majolica or Faience because it is made with a partly lead glaze, but that's a minor point. Look for the mark GSH, a monogram within a circle. The company gave away its wares to housewives (with baking powder) in the late 1800s, calling it "Etruscan" (from Etruria, an ancient city state in Italy) to make it sound old and Italian, I suppose.

Tiny flower girl serves in Thomas-Schuler rites

What started with tears ended with a grin as tiny Christine Thomas, aged 14 months, served as flower girl for the wedding of her aunt, Pamela Jean Thomas of Palatine. Wearing a wristlet of Woburn Abby roses and a long dress matching those of the bridesmaids, she toddled down the aisle tightly holding the hand of her mother, one of the bridal attendants.

Pamela, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Victor C. Thomas, became Mrs. James C. Schuler on Sept. 20 in First United Methodist Church, Palatine.

Mr. and Mrs. James C. Schuler

James is the son of the Jack H. Schulers of Palatine.

The bride approached the altar in an off-white, sheer princess gown with long sleeves and bib of Chantilly lace. Her lace-edged mantilla fell from a Camelot headpiece, and she carried stephanotis, white roses and white daisy pompons.

She chose Ann Lemberger of Palatine as maid of honor. Her sister-in-law, Debra Thomas of Schaumburg, Nancy Flynn of Rosemont and Sharon Schuler of Fort Collins, Colo., the groom's sister-in-law, were bridesmaids in organdy gowns of beige with a floral pattern in shades of salmon. They carried arm bouquets of Woburn Abby roses.

THE BRIDE'S nephew, 4-year-old Scott Thomas of Palatine, was ringbearer. Serving his brother as best man was John W. Schuler of Fort Collins. Others in the groom's party were the bride's brothers Charles and Robert, the groom's cousin, Bruce Alvin of Arlington Heights, Ladd Vagen of Buffalo Grove and Paul Peterson of Wheeling.

Following the ceremony, a dinner reception was held at Lancer Steak House. Pam and James then traveled to St. Louis, Mo., for a brief honeymoon and are living in Wheeling.

Pam, a 1972 graduate of Fremd High School, works at Boar's Head Restaurant, Mount Prospect, and James at Osco Drugs, Buffalo Grove. He is a '69 graduate of Arlington High and '74 graduate of Western Illinois University.

Tom Camden met his bride at work

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas W. Camden

The paths of Debbie J. Sundberg and Thomas W. Camden first crossed at National Tea Co. in Rosemont where she is an executive secretary and he is a store designer. They became man and wife in a double ring, candlelight service Sept. 20 in Christ Church, Hanover Park.

Debbie, daughter of the Edward Sundbergs of Hanover Park, is a graduate of Harper College. Tom, a graduate of Southern Illinois University, is the son of the Ken Camdens of Palatine.

The bride chose an ivory sheer gown with lace bodice trimmed in seed pearls. English lace bordered her fingertip veil. She carried a colonial bouquet of white roses, pompons and baby's breath.

WEARING BURNT orange Qiana gowns and straw picture hats, the bridal attendants carried straw baskets of bronze mums, peach roses and baby's breath. The bride's sister, Linda Theis of Chicago, was matron of honor, with Linda Becker, Streamwood, Martha Nabor, Carpentersville, Susan Zack, Glendale Heights, and Susan Waggoner, a cousin from Jacksonville, Fla., serving as bridesmaids.

Sheila Keefe, 4, Glendale Heights, was flower girl, and ring bearer was Steve Erb, 5, Waukegan.

Best man was the groom's brother, Dave, of Westmont. Groomsmen included Gary Garber, Eureka, Ill.; John Maurin, Carbondale, Greg Delker, Jacksonville, and Jim Sundberg, the bride's brother. Two other brothers of the bride, Jack and Jerry, were ushers.

The reception was held at the Embers Restaurant, Elgin, for 160 guests. The newlyweds honeymooned at Amelia Island Plantation, Fla., and now live in a quadrohome in Hanover Park.

Common sense can keep Halloween safe

The homeline
by Dorothy Ritz

Dear Dorothy: When I was a kid I loved Halloween and all the masks and costumes and friendly people. But life has changed so and some of the crazy people who have done such terrible things these past few years scare me out of my mind. I've got two energetic little ones and want to make sure they have fun — and yet not run into trouble. Aren't there some proved ways parents can do this? Can you find out for us? —Mrs. Jason C. Haygood

I don't think anything is foolproof, but certainly using common sense can help a lot. First, I don't think parents ought to let the young stray far from their own neighborhoods. Second, with the very small, it's wise to act as a discreet patrol. You can let them ring doorbells and so forth, while you keep an eye from a distance so you can help. Third, try to be sure Halloween costumes are fire-retardnt — and putting reflective tape on the backs is another sensible precaution in case they stray into the streets and roads. Fourth, make sure the masks have large enough eye-holes so the child isn't half-blinded and stumbles about. A few things like these can help make Halloween the sage and happy holiday it used to be.

Dear Dorothy: Planting some young trees, I was removing the burlap wrappings. My neighbor said I should leave the burlap on, but he couldn't explain why. Do you know what this is about? Should the burlap stay on? —Steve Doorman

Yes. The roots go through the burlap easily. Moreover, the burlap rots and adds extra humus to the soil.

Dear Dorothy: Is there some gadget that helps in drawing cord tighter so that package wrapping isn't such a nuisance? —Holly Meade

Never head of such a gadget. I always wet a few inches of the cord. It tightens as it dries.

Dear Dorothy: Because it's so much cheaper to buy products in large amounts, I arrange to divide items with friends before I buy them. For instance, I buy a 100-pound sack of 60 per cent or 90 per cent soy powder instead of the costly health-food store packages. Our teen-age daughter won't eat breakfast, but will drink a beverage of powdered milk, soy powder, ripe bananas, nutritional yeast, a sprinkle of wheat germ, sweetener and so forth. Our whole family thinks the drink as tasty as a milk shake. —Astrid Flagg

This list of ingredients sounds like those contained in most of the "tiger milk" recipes which many claim to be the best possible collection of nutrients.

Mr. and Mrs. Patrick J. Cipolla

Pat Cipollas honeymoon in Jamaica

Recent newlyweds, Donna L. Williams and Patrick J. Cipolla spent a week in Jamaica after their Sept. 6 wedding in Des Plaines Bible Church.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Don E. Williams of Des Plaines and the groom the son of Mr. and Mrs. Bart Cipolla of Mount Prospect.

Attendants for the bride included maid of honor Patti O'Connor of Des Plaines and bridesmaids Cleora Costello, Arlington Heights, a cousin of the bride; Mary Therese Cipolla, the groom's sister; and Lorie Ziesemer, Des Plaines. The groom chose Chris Kelly, Chicago, as best man. Groomsmen were Keith Costello, Arlington Heights; Mike Carey, Chicago; and Russ and Ed Williams, the bride's brothers.

AFTER THE candlelight ceremony at 4:30 p.m., the newlyweds greeted 200 guests at a party at Allgauer's Fireside Restaurant.

They are living in Mount Prospect, and the groom works in Broadview for Park Associates.

Donna graduated from Maine West High School and attended Harper College. Patrick is a graduate of St. Viator High.

Club to demonstrate Arab bread-baking

For those interested in Arab culture and Arab foods, Northwest Arab-American Women's Club will conduct an Arab bread-baking seminar Wednesday beginning 10:30 a.m. at the home of Hanan Hammad in Palatine.

All stages of breadmaking and the techniques will be demonstrated. Mixing, kneading and baking will occur without the normal time lapse, since dough will be ready at meeting time in various stages of preparation.

Guests may attend the seminar and may also inquire about club membership. Merilyn Shaw, 398-5320, has further information.

Mrs. Robert C. Randall

Newlyweds in New York

It was the third week in September, 1971 when Cheryl Ann Kmetz and Robert Charles Randall first met, and it was the third week in September 1975 when they were married.

The pair met at King's College, Briarcliff Manor, New York, where Cheryl, a graduate of Conant High, majored in Spanish. Daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John M. Kmetz St., Hoffman Estates, Cheryl and Robert, son of Mr. and Mrs. Carl H. Randall, Vestal, N.Y., were married at 7 p.m. Sept. 21 in First Baptist Church, Glen Ellyn.

For the double ring service Cheryl chose an organza gown with Venise lace motif trim. A crown of orange blossoms and pearls held her veil, and she carried stephanotis and pompons with baby's breath.

MATRON OF HONOR was her cousin, Sandra Lynn Edwards of Apple Grove, W. Va., and Suzanne Getman, sister of the groom, University City, Mo., was bridesmaid. Both wore terracotta gowns with ivory lace bodices and carried nosegays of wheat, baby's breath, apricot tea roses and strawflowers.

Best man was Jerry Grosby, Alliance, Ohio, and usher was Clyde Getman, brother-in-law of the groom.

A reception was held in the church after which the newlyweds honeymooned at the Walden Sheraton.

The groom is employed by Manufacturer's Hanover Trust, Rockefeller Center, New York City, and the newlyweds are residing in nearby Croton on Hudson.

Bride Roberta Novy wears grandma's gold lavalier

A gold lavalier, a gift from her grandmother, was the "something old" worn by Roberta A. Novy when she became the bride Sept. 20 of Dennis M. DeVetter.

The couple, who met at the University of Wisconsin-Whitewater, were married in a 3 p.m. double ring service in St. Raymond Church, Mount Prospect. Roberta's gown was of silk organza with Venise lace bodice, and her floor-length veil was trimmed in matching lace. Her flowers were phalenopsis orchids, stephanotis and baby's breath with ivy.

Mrs. Fred Koppitch, Dearborn, Mich., was matron of honor and bridesmaids were Becky Blaine, Arlington Heights, and Mrs. Michael Gervase, Bollingbrook. Their gowns were of turquoise Qiana with jackets in peach, turquoise, chartreuse and white print. Their flowers were peach roses, chartreuse mums and blue baby's breath.

THE GROOM'S brother, Paul, Fort Atkinson, Wis., was best man, and the bride's brother, Robert, Arlington Heights, and Michael Gimter, Tracy, Minn., were ushers.

The couple received congratulations from 100 guests at a reception in Old Orchard County Club after which they honeymooned two weeks in the Hawaiian Islands.

Mr. and Mrs. Dennis M. DeVetter

Roberta, daughter of the Robert J. Novys, Arlington Heights, graduated from the University of Wisconsin and until her marriage was with United Airlines in Chicago. The groom, son of the Gerald DeVetters, Fort Atkinson, owns and operates Valley Sanitation Co., in Monroe, Wis., where the newlyweds are residing.

KIDS' KORNER
by MARILYN HALLMAN

BOO-TIFUL HALLOWEEN SPIDER

This creepy fellow will add a chill or two to your home this Halloween. You may want to make several to hang in different places.

For the spider's body, paint a walnut shell half black. (Use black tempera, felt-tipped marker, or black shoe polish.)

Cut four black strips of paper ¼ inch by 8 inches. Staple or glue them together in the middle so the ends stick out like an 8-pointed star (A). Curl the end of each leg around a pencil.

Glue the body to the center of the legs. Glue on yellow paper or felt eyes. Hang this boo-tiful creature with a black thread.

The way we see it

Resist override efforts

When it reconvenes next week, the Illinois General Assembly should resist pressure to override Gov. Daniel Walker's budget vetoes.

The legislators will be under tremendous pressure to overturn the governor's education vetoes, because of the Chicago public schools' financial problems and because of the effect on other school districts around the state.

There is no doubt that the cuts will hurt districts which had planned budgets based on full funding of the state's school aid formula. However, it has become increasingly clear in the last few weeks that the state's financial position simply cannot tolerate full funding.

It may be that State Comptroller George Lindberg exaggerated the crisis which faced the state last week as cash reserves disappeared and bills continued to come due.

However, various state officials, including both Lindberg and Walker, seem to agree that the state's cash balance at the end of this fiscal year June 30 will be low. Walker has said the surplus will be only $115 million. Lindberg says it may be even lower.

The problem facing the legislature is that overriding the governor's veto of funds for the state school aid formula will cost the state at least $81 million and restoration of other budget cuts will add still more to that total.

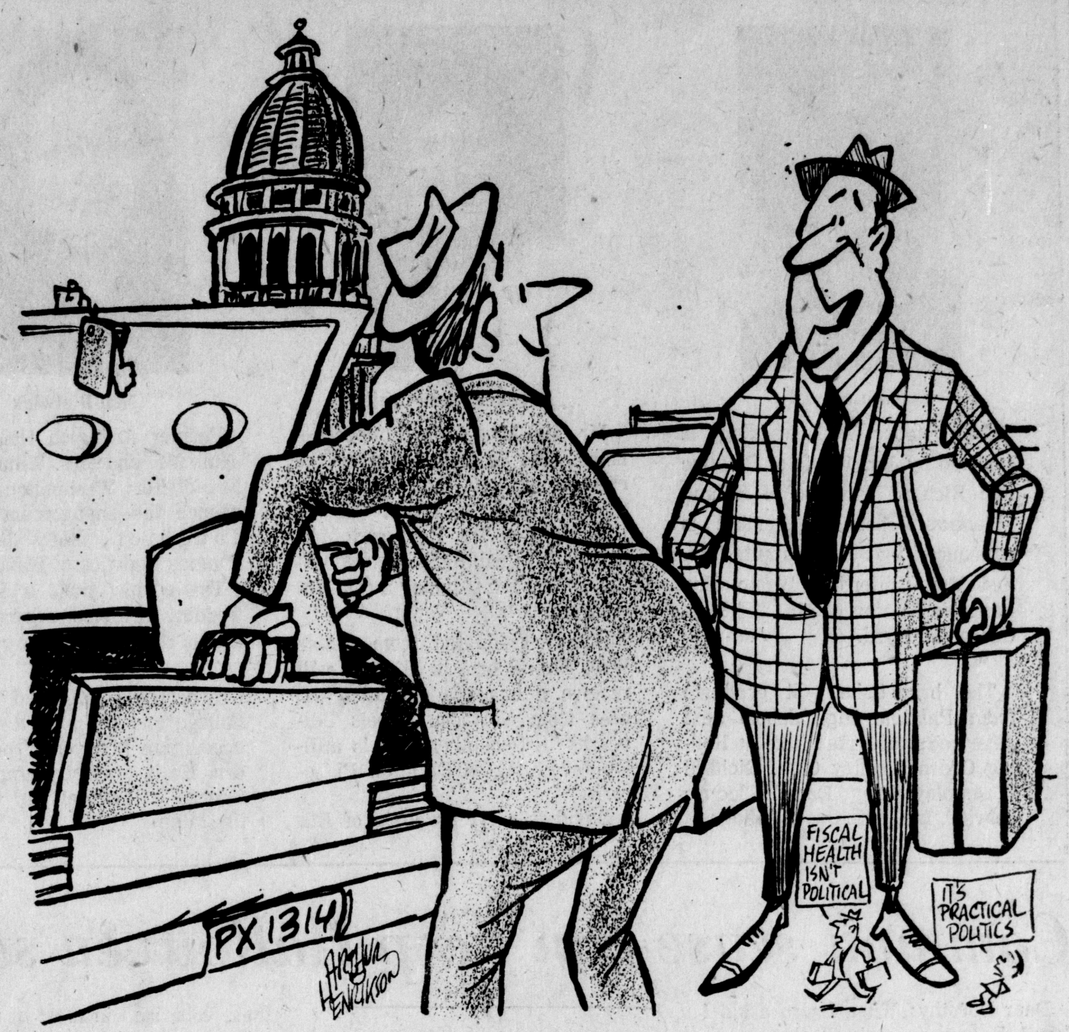
It is possible, as suggested by some Chicago legislators and members of the Chicago Board of Education, that revenue will increase next spring and the state will be able to afford veto overrides.

However, it is also possible that the state's financial situation will get worse and that a worsening recession will increase the state's welfare costs, thus eating into whatever surplus there may be.

At this point it is impossible for any legislator to predict exactly what will occur in the Illinois economy in the next eight months.

If the state's financial picture improves dramatically between now and the spring, it would be possible for the General Assembly to restore some of the budget cuts at that time through deficiency appropriations.

Right now, however, veto overrides would be an irresponsible gamble with the state's financial health. We cannot support such a legislative step.



Are you voting to override the Governor's vetoes, or are you running for reelection?

Investment aid proved a bust

by DOROTHY MEYER

Ever since I inherited a bit of stock a few years ago I'm on every investment mailing list in the country. Sometimes I get stuff that starts out with, "Do you have $10,000 in idle cash," and then I throw it out because if I had that kind of money I wouldn't be sitting around reading junk mail or worrying about what sounds like a death rattle in my 19-year-old clothes dryer.

However, some of the offers I get in the mail are for booklets to assist me in understanding the wondrous world of finance. If they're free, I send for them.

Thus I not only have offers to relieve me of any money I have idling about the house, I also am snowed under with diagnoses of what's troubleing the nation's economy and how it affects me as a stockholder.

MOST AUTHORS of what's-wrong-with-the-economy booklets are people with a string of college degrees who assume everybody understands their language. But most of the degrees I've had were in Fahrenheit when I had the flu and I wish the economists would talk plain English.

For instance, they all refer to the Keynesian theory as though everybody in the world knew what it was. Although I have been able to determine that John Maynard Keynes was a British economist and author who died in 1946, I still don't know what his theory was except that maybe 1946 was a bum year.

Then recently I was invited to invite an investment counselor into my home absolutely without obligation.

So I did — feeling absolutely no obligation to tell anybody that my stock holdings amounted to five shares in a rinky-dink company which sends me a quarterly dividend of 65 cents. Except the last time it was 70 cents and I was going to splurge the increase but everybody knows that you can't get anything for a nickel these days, not even three cents.

Since that situation could possibly be because of the Keynes fellow, the minute the money man came to my house I said, "Hello, what's the Keynesian theory?"

He said, "Aha! The illiquidity of many a business proves that Keynesianism can be catching."

"I THOUGHT that Keynes had a theory, not a disease," I said. "Is that what did him in, in 1946?"

Looking very stern, my investment counselor said, "Surely, Madam, you josh."

I said, "No — you Josh, me Jane — now tell me about illiquidity."

He countered with, "Policy emphasis must be redirected from a corrective orientation geared to the dynamics of a business cycle, to a propulsive orientation geared to the dynamics and promise of growth."

So I offered him a beer and he said, "Don't mind if I do, the illiquidity has really been rough today."

Now I'm short a six pack and I still don't know what Keynesianism is.

New Hampshire's February primary

A squareoff for Ford, Reagan...

by STEWART POWELL

CONCORD, N.H. (UPI) — On Feb. 24, New Hampshire voters will begin the process of deciding whether the accidental presidency of Gerald Ford was a quirk of history or a down payment on four more years.

Ford last went to the voters as a congressman from Michigan. In February it will be as President of the United States, campaigning in the nation's first 1976 presidential primary.

Two hurdles face him here — conservative former California Gov. Ronald Reagan and the quixotic New Hampshire voter, who traditionally takes more pride in upsetting expectations than in confirming them.

Last week Reagan sent his top three lieutenants into the state to prepare what his national chairman, Sen. Paul Laxalt, R-Nev., termed a "total effort."

NAMED TO HEAD the local Reagan operation was former GOP New Hampshire leader Hugh Gregg, a lawyer in the state's second largest city of Nashua and a well-regarded moderate who led the unsuccessful 1964 primary campaign of Nelson Rockefeller.

"I can't overemphasize the importance of the New Hampshire campaign to our effort," Laxalt told a news conference.

"We're the challenger."

Reagan organizers set a goal of at least 35 per cent of the GOP vote as the definition of the "strong showing" they said was needed to unseat Ford.

"We intend to win this primary," Gregg said. But even less would be acceptable, he added. "If we could get 35 to 40 per cent of the vote, this would be a victory."

Attracting support from most Republican officeholders with the exception of GOP Gov. Meldrim Thomson, the Ford campaign is headed by seven-term Rep. James Cleveland, the only elected Granite State Republican in Washington.

Although Thomson, a staunch conservative, backs Reagan, he was left out of the Citizens for Reagan committee in what its organizers said was an effort "to broaden" Reagan's appeal to moderates.

SINCE 1952, when it began holding the first state primary each presidential year, New Hampshire has sent tremors through candidates' carefully laid plans to become president.

Ford received a refresher course on the state's unpredictability only last month. While an estimated crowd of 120,000 persons cheered him along his 136 mile motorcade route across southern New Hampshire, voters overwhelmingly rejected the Republican Senate candidate Ford came to help. Reagan also campaigned for Louis Wyman in New Hampshire, and perhaps shared the lesson.

Three of the nation's last five presidents carried the early bird primary and went on to capture the nomination and the presidency — Dwight D. Eisenhower in 1952, John F. Kennedy in 1960 and Richard M. Nixon in 1968. All were campaigning for their first term.

For presidents seeking reelection, the primary has been less reliable. In 1968 President Lyndon Johnson's ambitions for a second full term were toppled when antiwar Sen. Eugene McCarthy, D-Minn., scored a moral triumph with 38 per cent of the vote. Johnson withdrew three weeks later.

AND IN 1952, when Harry Truman was undecided about a second full term, a 49 per cent showing in New Hampshire by the late Sen. Estes Kefauver, D-Tenn., is widely believed to have helped HST decide to take the train back to Independence, Mo.

...A Democratic cavalry charge

by STEWART POWELL

CONCORD, N.H. (UPI) — By the time President Ford and Ronald Reagan opened campaign operations for the 1976 New Hampshire presidential primary, some Democrats had been in the field for a full year.

But nothing Democrats have done the past year has ignited the interest here as much as the possibility of a showdown between the Michigan congressman who inherited the presidency and the movie star who twice was elected governor of California and now is the champion of conservative politics.

The Ford-Reagan struggle Feb. 24 may eclipse the Democratic contest, but it also could provide benefits to the opposition. It promises to give at least a shared limelight to relatively unknown Democratic presidential aspirants and some believe it will help trim Ford down to size for the ultimate showdown in November.

Earlybird Democrats welcomed the arrival of the Republicans.

"IT KEEPS Republicans in the Republican primary and it heightens interest in the Democrats," said Rep. Morris Udall, the Arizona congressman first to declare for president.

Like other Democrats campaigning here, Udall maintains he did not come to win, only for a "good showing" — a phrase for which he offers no definition. This is a prudent hedge in a state whose voters more than once have basked in national headlines by cutting down candidates who have said they needed victory in New Hampshire.

Udall aides don't target their first "must" victory until six weeks later in the Wisconsin primary. Former Georgia Gov. Jimmy Carter doesn't even go that far, saying a show of strength in all primaries is all he needs to capture the nomination.

"I don't know that you can say there is a primary that you have to win," said Carter news secretary John Powell.

Nineteen weeks before primary day, Carter and Udall were the only candidates with full time staff in New Hampshire. The other early starter, Fred Harris, former senator from Oklahoma and one-time Democratic national chairman, continued to rely on part time organizers won over at coffee klatches started more than a year ago.

THREE OTHER candidates have been less active in the state, although all have campaigned here and in neighboring Massachusetts. In New Hampshire, Sargent Shriver, 1972 vice presidential candidate, has the support of Walter Dunfey, a hotel magnate, but no full-time staff.

Terry Sanford, former governor of North Carolina and now Duke University president, last campaigned extensively in the state in May. Although only 50 miles away in Massachusetts, Sanford did not attend a $100-a-couple fund-raiser early in October while six competitors did.

Pennsylvania Gov. Milton Shapp also campaigns here although on his last trip he said victory was only one purpose of his campaign.

"Now that I'm a candidate for president," Shapp said, "I might be able to get my programs on the national agenda."

'Bible supports system of capitalism'

Fence post
letters to the editor

In reference to the article "Capitalism Contrary to Bible?" in The Herald of Oct. 11, the "respected church leaders" who are advocating socialism or Marxism with the ethical vision of the Bible should open their eyes to the Good Book and reality.

American capitalism produces enough to feed ourselves plus a surplus for the socialists who cannot provide for themselves. Millions are starving in socialistic India and other emerging socialistic nations. Socialism is ruining the economy of England. If Marxism works so well, why do the Russians need our wheat? No, respected church leaders, socialism is not the answer to the world's food or proverty problems. Capitalism has made the U.S. the Promised Land, the envy of every other country.

Jesus' parable in Matthew 25 says the Reign of God can be likened to a man who was going on a journey:

"He called in his servants and handed his funds over to them according to each man's abilities. To one he disbursed 5,000 silver pieces, to a second 2,000, and to a third 1,000. Then he went away.

". . . After a long absence, the master of those servants came home and settled accounts with them. The man who had received the 5,000 came forward . . . 'My lord,' he said, 'you let me have 5,000. See, I have made 5,000 more.' His master said to him, 'Well done! You are an industrious and reliable servant . . .'

"THE MAN WHO had received 2,000 then stepped forward. 'My lord,' he said, 'You entrusted me with 2,000 and I have made 2,000 more.' His master said to him, "Cleverly done! You too are an industrious and reliable servant . . .'

"Finally the man who had received the 1,000 stepped forward. 'My lord,' he said, '. . . I went off and buried your 1,000 silver pieces in the ground. Here is your money back.' His master exclaimed: 'You worthless, lazy lout! You know I reap where I did not sow and gather where I did not scatter. All the more reason to deposit my money with the bankers, so that on my return I could have it with interest. You there! Take the 1,000 and give it to the man with 10,000. Those who have, will get more until they grow rich, while those who have not, will lose even the little they have.' "

The reign of God appears to have a capitalistic tinge.

AMERICAN REVOLUTION BICENTENNIAL 1776-1976

Dateline 1775

(by United Press International)

FALMOUTH PORTLAND, Maine, Oct. 18—British men-of-war bombarded and all but destroyed the town after people evacuated their homes without turning over their arms, as demanded by the British. British shore parties put the torch to remaining buildings and ships in the harbor.

WYEN-FM's night owl, Jayne Neches, spins another request.

'Night people' are different

already operating on seven cups of coffee while Diana Ross and the Supremes sing "Love Child," one of the night's opening cuts.

"MY WHOLE ADRENALIN is going," she says just before swinging her chair over to the big padded microphone to inform the night-side radio audience there'll be a touch of frost on their windows this morning.

A high-flying adrenalin is an indispensible asset during the midnight to 1 a.m. hour. that's when Jayne is moving non-stop from turntables to mike and to those incessantly blinking request phones. Between that, there's just enough time left over to keep up with her nightly FCC program log and get tapes ready for the next commercial.

There's no playing hree or four sraight records and putting one's feet up either. She seldom plays more than two in succession the first couple of hours, mainly because she has to get the station's identification on the air as frequently as possible. That means even more trips to the record library housing the various volumes of musical fare.

It's not until well past 2 a.m. and on Fridays later than that when Jayne will spin a series of cuts and then for a two-fold purpose: one, to give her a well-deserved breather and two because later on, audience requests dictate a change from consistently live pop lyric to the slower, more "mellow" variety, as Jayne puts it.

"It's a little different audience and a little slower pace," she says even as a jazz number by Sergio Mendez plays in satisfaction of a listener's request.

SHE'S GOT HER late-night listeners pretty well sized up.

"They're totally different generally because they've had to read-just their life styles. They're not the mainstream of society, and their psyches are a little different," she says.

Saturday

They work all night, they can't sleep or have to stay up for one reason or another and are not as interested in the ball scores, weather and expressway conditions. They just want music, Jayne says.

She also likes to throw in the off-beat stuff, the comments, the quips, "The little interesting tidbits I discover in the paper. You know, somebody who was driving a cab and is now a great artist." Daily, she scans magazines and newspapers for just such drollery to read on the air.

The phone calls usually run a general stock each night, but Jayne never ceases to be amused.

She can't get into gabfests with her callers, but she'll answer questions, even about herself if they're within reason. An exception? "How much money do I make," she laughs.

SHE CHUCKLES, remembering the guy who called two nights in a row requesting the same John Denver song and in an obvious attempt at ruse, just happened to mention he had a rare blood disease he couldn't even pronounce correctly.

Jayne told him she was sorry, but it would be difficult to honor his request for the same song because there were so many others to play. She's waiting for the caller to try again some night saying he's terminally ill and his dying wish is to hear the John Denver song once more.

She picks up the phone again, and a smile crosses her face when she recognizes the voice on the other end. "Charley, how are you?" she asks. Charley like Jayne, is a night owl working for an all-night telephone service and regularly calls to request a song or just to say hello and see what's new.

Now it's getting to be 5 a.m., the final hour of Jayne's slot. The early birds begin rising and with them, Jayne's adrenalin perks up once more. Now she has to wake them up and help them to get to work on time.

In an hour, her successor, Frank Gray, will move into the booth for his 6 to 10 a.m. show. Still there are few idle moments, because now the job is to put the tapes and records back into their proper racks. Each jock is idiosyncratic about keeping them handy before they're used, but they've got to be in the proper place by show's end, she says.

For most suburbanites, the day is jus beginning, but Jayne's is nearing the end. She'll have a tennis date later on this morning, but the first order of business is to "eat breakfast."

Last-minute New York bail-out halts stock dive

NEW YORK (UPI) — A last-minute infusion of funds saving New York from default Friday halted a skid in prices on the New York Stock Exchange, but analysts said investors still were skeptical about the city's future.

The Dow Jones industrial average, which had fallen almost 10 points as the default deadline approached, rebounded on news the crisis was averted when city teachers agreed to pour $150 million in pension funds into the city treasury.

The Dow still finished the day down 5.67 at 832.18. Standard & Poor's 500-stock index lost 0.51 to 88.86, and the price of an average NYSE common share dropped 17 cents.

Analysts said Wall Street was disheartened by the failure of the White House and the Federal Reserve Board to come to New York's rescue when default appeared inevitable.

BEFORE THE TEACHERS agreed to come up with the money to help the city pay its immediate bills Friday, President Ford had flatly rejected frantic appeals from city and state officials for federal help.

The municipal bond market, which ground to a standstill early in the day when default seemed certain, also recovered somewhat.

Some high quality municipal bonds, includng an issue from California, actually ended the day at interest rates lower than Thursday.

Bond dealers said many municipal bond investors overcame their initial shock over the possibility of default by New York City and came back into the market during the day.

Dealers said the fear of New York default had its greatest adverse impact on the bonds from state's such as Massachusetts and Connecticut that recently have been downgraded in quality by credit-rating agencies.

Harper meets ranked DuPage in 'biggest game ever'

by CHARLIE DICKINSON

It will be brother against brother and defense against defense today at 1:30 at North Central College in Naperville when the College of DuPage, unchecked in five games this year with three shutouts, hosts the surging Harper Hawks (3-2) who, according to head coach John Eliasik, "could have four shutouts ourselves if things had fallen the right way."

Eliasik continues: "Our defense has just the one shutout (31-0 last week against Thornton) but Rock Valley scored late in the game against our second stringers, Illinois Valley got their touchdown on the last play of the game and Kennedy-King scored when the refs blew the whistle and everyone stopped except the Kennedy-King runner.

"They gave them a touchdown on that one for some reason."

DuPage is ranked eighth in the nation and considered the elite of Illinois Juco football. They have blanked

Mark Steger

Wright, Illinois Valley and Joliet, the first shutout in 30 games for the Joliet Wolves.

So if it sounds like a 0-0 tie shaping up, don't count on it.

"Our offense has looked good in practice this week," Eliasik said. "We're just hitting our stride. I only hope we don't peak too early."

The brother against brother war involves DuPage's towering quarterback, Kevin Steger. Kevin's brother Kurt is the signal caller at the University of Illinois while Mark is an assistant coach with Harper.

A basketball player last year, the 6-6 Steger pilots an offense that includes halfbacks Kevin Lio (5-8, 170) and Jeff Johnson (6-0, 190) and fullback Bill Neilsen (5-10, 195).

"We threw a lot our first two games," said Chaparral head man Fred Dempsey, "but then defenses started keying on our pass and the last three games we've been running mostly.

"We've looked at films of the Harper team and scouted them in every game they've played. My kids are impressed. Right now we're studying those films pretty hard looking for a weakness that we can hang a game plan on.

"So far I haven't seen anything."

Dave Patterson and Gary Mueller have put in the most time at quarterback for the Hawks this year and although Mueller will be the guiding hand on the Harper offensive controls this week, both will play a significant part in today's showdown.

"Harper is the most improved team in the conference," Dempsey said. "Mueller has turned their whole team around. Our defense has been carrying us this season and with the way Harper has been playing lately they could give us the biggest test we've had."

Mueller clicked for 118 passing yards in the rout of Thornton, getting stout support from running backs Butch Allen (seven carries for 76 yards) and Jim Stump (12 for 83) and receiver DuWayne Mill, who caught six passes for 57 yards.

But Patterson, who leads the Hawks in scoring with 25 points, has toed four field goals and averages close to 38 yards every time he punts, could mean the difference in this toss-up tussle.

"Du Page's kicking game is very suspect," Eliasik said. "Their kickoffs have been very poor and their punting only average. The kicking game could very easily decide who wins in a close game like this and I'd put Dave up against anybody in that respect."

Eliasik is hoping the Chaps will either come out throwing or be forced to throw by the Harper defense.

"Our pass rush has been outstanding this year," Eliasik said. "We've been getting to the quarterback much quicker (eight sacks against Rock Valley and five versus Thornton) and that has made our defensive secondary look good because they don't have to cover the receivers as long."

The importance of this game to the Hawks is spelled out in Eliasik's statement that "This is the biggest game we've ever had at Harper. This is our first real shot at going to the Bowl (Midwest Community College Bowl to be played between the best team from Minnesota and the best from Illinois).

"Playing DuPage right now is our biggest opportunity. We've come back from a lot of problems and have reached them at just the right time. There's no reason why we can't do what we have to do."

Hersey whips Palatine for North honors

Unbeaten Huskies gain No. 7 with 20-7 victory

by ART MUGALIAN

Hersey football coach Joe Gliwa was ecstatic and he said so.

"We're ecstatic!" he exclaimed in the locker room after his team had bailed out a 20-7 victory over Palatine Friday night with a pair of second-half touchdowns by fullback Matt Zakula.

"We're ecstatic because we're 7-0 and that's our best record ever here at Hersey and we're Mid-Suburban North champions for the fifth year in a row," Gliwa shouted without taking an extra breath.

Gliwa's Huskies pulled a second-half reversal against the tough Pirates (5-2) that was similar to their come-from-behind win over Buffalo Grove the week before. Hersey was trailing to Palatine 7-6 at intermission in the front of the Huskies' own homecoming crowd.

But a fumble recovery by linebacker Mark Knuttel gave Hersey the ball at the Pirate 12 just a minute into the second half to set up Zakula's go-ahead touchdown. And Gliwa's defenders stopped a Palatine drive at the Huskie 14 moments later to end the last serious threat to Hersey's championship plans.

"We got bad position on the kickoff to begin with," moaned Palatine coach Arv Herstedt later. "And then it wasn't too hard for them to convert after the fumble."

Wally Hommerding carried twice to the four and Zakula, a 195-pound bruiser, smacked over two plays later after taking the handoff from quarterback Scott Topczewski. Leading the way were the right guard and right tackle, Steve Mack and John Haney.

"Zakula made some key yardage up the middle tonight and our line did another fine job of blocking," said Gliwa.

Mack, Haney, tackle Bob Kapusinski, center Tom Barnard, and guard Bob Trudeau paved the way for Zakula's 130 yards rushing on 24 carries.

Palatine, now 2-2 and out of the North race, had taken a 7-0 lead in the first quarter on an eight-yard touchdown pass from Mark McCostlin to John Bals. The Palatine quarterback put the toss up for grabs in the end zone and Bals made a circus catch after a Hersey defender tipped the ball.

Sensational Pirate halfback Jim Popp rushed for 26 yards during that drive on his way to 64 for the half, putting the Palatine senior over the 1,000 mark for the year. But Popp was held to just 12 yards in the second half as Hersey became the first team to hold him under 100 this year.

"They made a mistake thinking they could run on us," said Gliwa. "Palatine's a good offensive team and their attack is based on a good running game, but how many teams have held them to seven points?"

The answer to Gliwa's question is one — Hersey.

Zakula scampered 40 yards to start an 86-yard drive early in the fourth quarter en route to Hersey's third score. Hommerding picked up an important first down with a 10-yard sweep to the Paltine eight on a fourth-down play.

"We had a defensive letdown there on fourth-and-nine," said Herstedt, "and that really hurt. You know, we played a good ball game for one half, but we didn't play a good second half."

Zakula's six-yard touchdown run capped the fourth-quarter march. The big converted quarterback bulled his way to paydirt through the left side of the line.

Hommerding, who finished the night with 115 yards on the ground, found daylight for a 68-yard TD to put the Huskies on the board in the first half. The 170-pound junior took a pitchout on the power sweep, broke a tackle, and sprinted to the end zone. Hersey's extra-point kick was aborted because of a bad snap.

Hersey's defense, led by Knuttel, tackles Dave Komiss and Steve Marsh, end Steve Johnson, and linebacker Bill Cashmore, stopped a Pirate drive near the end of the third period just when it looked like Palatine was going to move back into the game.

The Pirates had gained possession on the Huskie 38-yard line after smearing Topczewski on a botched-up punt attempt. A pass interference call on Hersey and a six-yard keeper by McCostlin put the ball at the 14, but on third-and-two fullback Jeff Williams ran into a stone wall for no gain.

Herstedt elected to go for the first down and sent in a pass play. McCostlin had split end Bill Finlay in the open in the left flat, but the high pass was off the receiver's fingertips.

Cardinals roll past Fremd, 29-15

Passing show keeps Arlington alumni happy

by PAUL LOGAN

The Arlington Cardinals broke open a close football game with a 15-point third quarter and coasted to a 29-15 homecoming victory over Fremd Friday night.

"The two passes early kind of set the tone," said Fremd coach Joe Samojedny. "Our kids just couldn't play one on one with them."

Samojedny was referring to a pair of touchdown passes less than two minutes apart late in the first quarter. Doing the accurate throwing was the Mid-Suburban League's leading passer, Matt Shaughnessy.

The 5-foot-9, 160-pound Cardinal quarterback capped the first drive of 65 yards with a 15-yard toss to John Vukovich. Steve Leonhard then kicked the first of three extra points.

On Fremd's second play after the score, Arlington's Tom Berryman recovered a fumble. Shaughnessy quickly found the MSL's top receiver — Tom North — for a 41-yard bomb. North outfought a Viking defender and backed into the end zone.

The Vikings, 1-5 over-all and 1-3 in the North Division, appeared to be making a fight of it by scoring late in the second quarter. A 66-yard drive was capped by a 27-yard touchdown pass from Dale Hallberg to Dave Snow.

Pete Passaglia's extra point made it 14-7, but the Vikings wers not to score until the closing minute against Arlington's second string.

Arlington, 2-2 in the North Division and 5-2 over-all, helped put the game out of reach in the third quarter with the help of its tough defense. Berryman and Greg Kloiber sacked Hallberg for a safety.

After the ensuing free kick, Arlington took over on the Fremd 47. Shaughnessy's four completions — two each to Wayne Eisenhuth and North — helped move the ball to the five from where Keith Chamblee scored.

Just before the period ended, a recovered fumble by Jason Slezak set up another 34-yard drive. Five plays later, Leonhard scored from the one.

Fremd's final touchdown came on a 17-yard reverse Dan Whyler. Jim Bornaman hit Kerry Field for the two-point conversion.

"The coach called a good game," said Shaughnessy. The senior signal-caller added that Fremd probably thought he'd pass "20 or 25 times" because the Cards had lost their second running back (Phil Dinielli) the week before.

"Mike (Schell) and Phil are hard to fill in for, but they (Leonhard and Chamblee) were doing a good job. With Steve and Keith blocking, I had plenty of time."

Shaughnessy proved why he's tops in the MSL in passing percentage by hitting on 10 of 13 for 153 yards.

"I think he's the best in the league," praised Arlington coach Chuck Haines. "There's none that can hit a man while on the run from 40 yards away.

"Of course, he's got some good receivers."

North — who leads the MSL in receptions, yardage and touchdowns — added to that total with four catches for 79 yards. Eisenhuth had four for 43.

"I thought we had a really good shot at Arlington, but we had a letdown," said Samojedny. "We couldn't control the line and couldn't get our running game going."

Arlington's defense held the Vikings to 117 total yards. Meanwhile, the offensive blocking of Jim Zobel, Tom Toffoli, Rick Purcell, Art Klein, Kirk Kennedy and Kloiber opened holes for 132 rushing yards. Chamblee had 68 yards with Leonhard right behind with 61.

Tom Philippe paced the Viking rushing attack with 49 yards. "He's coming," said Samojedny. "But we haven't replaced (Curt) Blik out there." Blik was injured earlier in the year.

CINCINNATI REDS' slugger Tony Perez, who stroked two homers on Thursday, rips the baseball during Friday workout in Boston's Fenway Park. Rainstorms threaten World Series which resumes today in Boston. Cincinnati holds 3-2 edge over hosting Red Sox.

Morgan vows 'execution'; storm threatens Series

World Series

by FRED McMANE
UPI Sports Writer

BOSTON — A weather forecast of three inches of rain cast serious doubt that the sixth game of the World Series would be played on Saturday, but the Cincinnati Reds agreed that an extra day's postponement would only prolong the inevitability of their beating the Boston Red Sox and wrapping up their first world championship in 35 years.

"If we get rained out Saturday, it's just a stay of execution," said Reds' second baseman Joe Morgan.

The Reds, who won Thursday night's game 6-2, lead the best-of-seven series, three games to two.

An 80 per cent chance of rain was predicted for the area beginning Friday night, and if the sixth game was postponed, it would be moved back until Sunday. If a seventh game became necessary it would be played Monday, but a starting time would probably be dictated by television officials.

Jack Billingham, a right-hander who started the second game of the Series at Fenway Park last Sunday has been named by Reds' manager Sparky Anderson to bring home Cincinnati's first world championsip since 1940. Billingham hurled 5-2/3 innings last Sunday and was tagged for six hits and two runs, but was not involved in the decision.

Billingham won 15 games for the Reds during the regular season, but was not overly effective for much of the year. Anderson dropped him from the starting rotation during the last week of the season and did not start him in the National League playoffs against Pittsburgh.

"That part of my year is behind me now," said Billingham. "This is a whole new season. I'm delighted at having the opportunity to start a game of this importance."

As it was in Game Two, Billingham's opponent will be Bill Lee, a free-thinking southpaw who held the hard-hitting Reds to just five hits in eight innings, then watched from the dugout as reliever Dick Drago blew the game in the ninth.

Lee, whose outspokenness and often eccentric behavior has earned him the nickname "Spaceman," said he expected to be nervous in the most important start of his life.

"Nervous?" said Lee. "I'll be nervous. I'm nervous every day of my life. This is my way of working it out. Some buys beat their wives. I talk a lot.

"But the game's not that important," he joked. "It's only the sixth game. Most pitchers don't like to face the same team in one week. They'll hit me a little better I suppose, but I'm counting on the fact that we'll hit Billingham a lot better."

Red Sox' manager Darrell Johnson said he would change his lineup again to suit the different terrain of Fenway Park. Carl Yastrzemski, who played left field in the first three games and then was shifted to first base for the last two, returns to left field with Cecil Cooper moving to first base. Cooper played the first three games, but was benched the last two after going only 1-for-13 at the plate.

While the Reds were confident they could wrap up the title in six games, the Red Sox were not quite ready to call it quits.

"They say that Billingham pitched as well as he can when he faced us the first time," said Red Sox' shortstop Rick Burleson. "So in that case, we should do better. He put the ball in good spots, and maybe he won't this time. I think we can beat them the two games."

Even if the sixth game is rained out and a necessary seventh game is played Monday, Anderson said he will not start his ace southpaw, Don Gullett, in the decisive game. Gullett beat the Red Sox Thursday night, allowing them only two hits over the first eight innings.

"The only time I would start Gullett is if the seventh game were Tuesday," said Anderson. "He has not started a game with less than four days' rest this year and I will not make an exception in the World Series.

"Gullett is going to have a fine career with Cincinnati and I will not be responsible for jeopardizing his career by having him throw when his arm is not ready. He would be available for a couple of innings of relief on Sunday, however."

Mauch to lead Oakland

Finley kicks aside A's manager Dark

The "Wrath of Finley" struck again Friday as Oakland Athletics' owner Charlie Finley dismissed manager Alvin Dark, for the second time and hired Gene Mauch, recently deposed at Montreal, to lead the Athletics next summer.

Dark was first let out by Finley in 1967 when the A's were based in Kansas City. This new firing reportedly stems from remarks Dark made regarding Finley to a gathering at the Pentacostal Church in Hayward, near Oakland.

Renowned for his prayers and known as "The Preacher," Dark reportedly told the church audience that Finley is a sinner who "was going to hell unless he mended his ways."

According to one witness, Dark also called himself a sinner but did not say he was going to wind up the same as his boss.

Finley laughed when told of the incident and said his mother didn't think he was going to hell, "and she knows more about these things than Alvin Dark." But Finley had aides mail him several copies of the Hayward Review wiich made front page news of Dark's speech.

New manager Mauch was released by the Montreal Expos on the final day this past season after giving Canadian baseball fans seven consecutive losing years.

Mauch gained infamy of sorts in 1964 when his Philadelphia Phillies lost a six-game National League lead in the season's final week.

Finley, who has fired more managers than any owner in baseball history, said he did not blame Dark for the A's losing to Boston in recent American League playoffs.

In fact, Finley went out of his way to praise Dark, one time saying, "The Preacher did a helluva job of managing." As it turned out, that was an interesting description.

Butkus sues Bears again

Dick Butkus, former All-Pro linebacker for the Chicago Bears, has filed a $1.6 million suit in U.S. District Court charging the Bears with breach of contract.

Butkus has another $1.6 million suit pending in Cook County Circuit Court.

The federal suit, filed late Thursday, claimed the Bears refused to pay Butkus his annual salary of $115,000 for the remaining four years of his five-year contract. He was injured in November, 1973, and could no longer play. The contract was signed Jan. 13, 1973.

The suit also claimed the club did not pay his medical expenses.

The suit seeks $600,000 in compensatory damages and $1 million in punitive damages.

Ouch! Bears play at Pittsburgh

The punchless and defenseless Chicago Bears are most likely in for a sound whipping at the hands, feet, arms and legs of Chuck Noll's Super Bowl champion Steelers when the two National Football League teams meet on Sunday in Pittsburgh.

Chicagoans can witness the expected atrocity by tuning into WBBM-TV, Channel 2, at noon. Pittsburgh is nearly a three-touchdown favorite over the Bears. And even that could be kind.

So far this season, the Steelers are averaging 30 points and 406 yards total offense per game. More than half that total has come off the passing arm of Terry Bradshaw, the NFL's passing statistics leader.

Bradshaw has completed 47-of-60 passes for 638 yards and five touchdowns while sustaining only one stolen pass.

The Bears were an incredible flop in last Sunday's NFC Central Division mismatch, losing a 27-7 decision to the supposedly lowly Detroit Lions. In that one, Bear quarterback Gary Huff completed 21-of-36 passes for 227 yards.

But Jack Pardee's ballclub couldn't score until the game's final play from scrimmage, Huff passing eight yards to wide receiver Bob Grim.

Pardee has verbally blasted the Bears' offensive line execution. It should be just that . . . an execution . . . when those people try to move Pittsburgh's powerful defense.

U.S.A. excels at Pan-Am Games

America's defiant band of athletes, who have taken extreme abuse from the Pan-Am Games' crowds in Mexico City, silenced their critics with gold medal performances in shooting and track and field on Friday.

The U.S.A. trap shooting team broke its own world record by three points with a 391 total to win from Canada and Mexico.

Nineteen-year-old Joni Huntley of Sheridan, Ore., and Sam Colson of Clemson, S.C., set Pan-Am Games records in women's high jump (6-2½) and javelin throw (273-½) respectively.

Mark Cameron of Middleton, R.I., picked up three silver medals in heavyweight weightlifting.

The U.S. men's basketball team defeated Venezuela, 97-32, for a perfect record in four games while American women were turning aside Canada, 75-56.

But it was a 5-3 baseball defeat which the Dominican Republic pinned on America. And the U.S.A. soccer team was eliminated by Trinidad, 1-0.

League archery meet at Hersey

Arlington's archery team is heavily favored to repeat as the Mid-Suburban Conference champion this afternoon at Hersey High School.

The girls of Coach Linda Swanson will receive their toughest challenges from Fremd and Prospect, which finished 2-3 in the dual meet portion of the competition. They'll be shooting for a share of the title at 1 p.m. on the varsity football field.

The Arlington Cardinals rolled up 203.5 points and another 10-0 record this season. Fremd's Vikings had 157.5 and a 9-1 record with Prospect right behind at 157 and 8-2.

Going into the showdown, Prospect's Dorothy Nee carries the best season average with 605. After that, the top 10 listings are almost all Arlington people:

Linda Bahe, Arlington, 598; Kathy Uhrich, Fremd 592; Vicki Dale, Arlington 582; Diane Swanson, Arlington, 581; Mary Korn, Arlington 573; Pam Brown, Arlington, 564; Pamela Hahn, Arlington, 564; Pat Henry, Fremd, 555; and Kathy Stephens, Wheeling, 553.

Superb Knights gain state meet; Zambole doesn't

by KEITH REINHARD

Scores soared with the wind at sectional golf action in the Chicagoland area Friday but as the temperatures sank, Prospect's woods and irons grew hotter, earning the Knights few class accommodations in the state finals next week in Champaign.

Paced by veteran Scott Spielmann, the Knights forged an impressive 319 total to garner championship honors at the New Trier West sectional gathering yesterday afternoon.

Playing among an elite field at the 6,457-yard Winnetka Golf Club, coach George Bork's crew finished with a commanding six-stroke lead over a trio of teams knotted in second place.

The news wasn't so good for other area district qualifiers, most of whom were caught up in the cold, vicious winds coming down out of the northeast. Buffalo Grove, also entered at New Trier, skyrocketed to a 339 and ninth place.

Forest View, entered in the Glenbard East tourney at Glen Ellyn's Village Links, wound up in sixth place. Two individual at-large candidates at Winnetka, meanwhile, Hersey's Ed Stubbs and St. Viator's Chuck Lynch, posted 85s to finish well out of the running.

Nick Zambole of Palatine carded a solid 77 in the New Trier Cowboy hosted sectional to finish fourth on the medalist list. Only the top three teams and top three individuals not belonging to a qualified team earn the right to head downstate. All three golfers placing ahead of the Pirate senior were not from qualifying teams.

Prospect's super finish was only a surprise in light of the rugged opposition they had to contend with over the well-watered, par 71 Winnetka layout.

The big shocker was Barrington's lackluster demonstration and subsequent failure to make the cut.

Included among the Bronco line-up, which has now completed its 1975 season, is Gary Hallberg, last year's individual winner at Champaign.

Hallberg had trouble in the early going, rallied for a respectable 79, but had absolutely no support from his usually accurate teammates. Barrington wound up with a 334.

Apparently not as effected by either the winds or pressure at Winnetka was Dave Ogrin of Waukegan East, state medalist as a sophomore in 1974. He came up with a dazzling (for theday) 73 to lead the pack by a mile.

Spielmann, like Zambole, fired a 77 coming back from a 40 over the first nine to lead the way for the Knights. Paul Moats and Mike Dee added 80s to the cause. Mike Ambrosio rounded out the blue-ribbon scoring effort with an 82.

Forest View was led by Jim Moran at 85 while Mike Rice and Hank Damiano added 87s and Tom Starkey totalled 88.

Dan Krolack was Buffalo Grove's top shooter at 83. Mike Marshall and Bob Hoffman had 85s and Doug Warman and Tony Puciaty added 86s.

Stout Elk Grove defense sparkles

by CHARLIE DICKINSON

David King

Elk Grove's relentless defense made a second quarter Tim Roberts touchdown hold up through four periods of bruising football as the Grenadiers welcomed everyone home in grand style with a 7-0 Mid-Suburban League South Division victory over the Hoffman Estates Hawks.

The Grens' victory raised their Southside stock to 2-3 and their overall mark to 2-5. The loss wiped out Hoffman's title aspirations, dropping their league mark to 3-2.

"Hoffman looked tough every time we saw them this year," said Elk Grove coach Don Schnake. "They gave us a good battle but it feels good to finally get over the hump."

Elk Grove avoided the frustrations that have plagued them in a series of games this season with enough offense to control the ball when it counted and a David King lead defense that turned in the big play on several occasions.

Elk Grove got a lift at the start of the second quarter when Roberts, who had a "broken" ankle until Wednesday, took his usual productive spot in the Grens' backfield.

"I don't really know if he picked up our team," Schnake recounted. "But he made a difference in our defense. I was happy with the way the whole offense looked, moving the ball out there like they did."

Roberts took over the brunt of the rushing chores from Shawn Murphy, who plowed for 21 yards mostly in the first quarter, and zipped for 88 yards on an ankle that looked extremely healthy.

"Up until Wednesday we thought his ankle was broken," Schnake said. "There was a shadow on the X-ray but the doctor gave him the OK to play.

"He's a helluva halfback and we were glad to have him in there."

Roberts' return to the lineup keyed the only point production of the night. Quarterback Dave Champa guided the Gren defense through a stiff wind with a poised touch that included a 12-yard scramble and a 31-yard pass to quarterback turned receiver Tom Allen.

Roberts busted over from the three yard line and Champa toed the extra point to give the Elk Grove defense all the points they needed.

Hoffman had their most consistent offensive tool in Dave Lipko. The steady senior tailback found holes behind an offensive line of Jim Moore, Jim Thomas, Doug Rush and Frank Gurecki for a game high 127 yards in 23 attempts.

But for all of Lipko's groundbound fireworks, the Elk Grove defense took the Hawks' best shots and repeatedly turned the Hoffman attack back to the drawing board.

Defensive back King paced the Gren defense with a searing blitz that caught the Hawk offense unawares several times. Early in the second quarter he dashed through the line at the snap and buried Hawk quarterback Wayne Jackson for a 15-yard loss then pulled the same stunt in the third quarter for a six yard deficit charged to Lipko's account.

King and defensive mates Pete Gennuso, Tim McGuire, Scott Stromberg, Mike Kwiakowski and Jim Maier faced Hoffman's final offensive thrust in the fourth quarter with the same resolve they showed all night.

Jackson put his offensive team to work at their own 19-yard line, facing into a stiff wind. His first call to Bill DiPuma lost a pair of yards but he came right back with a nine-yard pass to Kevin Stalley.

He followed that two plays later with a big 21-yard gain through the breeze to DiPuma for a first down but was thrown off-stride on the next play when an offensive pass interference flag cost the Hawks 15 yards.

The Elk Grove defense broke up a pair of pass attempts with King smacking the ball loose from Stalley on the last play to put the icing on a satisfying Gren victory.

Falcons strike fast; handle Cougars, 28-12

by JIM COOK

Jim Vartanian raced 80 yards on the opening play from scrimmage and Forest View added two more scores in the final 3:25 of the first half to help propel the Falcons past stubborn Conant, 28-12, Friday night.

"We needd that quick one badly," Forest View head coach Fred Lussow admitted. "After two straight losses, our kids were getting down, but that first play gave them a good mental boost."

Vartanian, a Falcon speedster more noted for his exceptional pass receiving ability, was the last man around on Forest View's belly-option offense.

He grabbed quarterback Jim Petran's pitchout on the numbers and never broke stride after turning the corner at the 20 for the electrifying 80-yard score. Greg Jacobs kicked his first of four booming conversions.

But Conant countered the initial shock by striking on the first play of the second quarter to cap a 12-play, 64-yard march that was doubly highlighted by the bruising power-running of newfound 5-foot-11, 175-pound back Jeff Johnson and the water-spider artistry of 5-foot-1 scatback Steve Stompanato.

Bob Jenovai

Jeff Johnson

Keeping the ball strictly on the ground, Cougar quarterback Scott Schafer kept alternating plays to his two teammates in the power I formation with consistent ball-control results. Schafer finally snuck in from the one to pull the Cougars within 7-6.

The merciless wind took over after that — creating such oddities as 12 and 58-yard punts, seemingly helium-filled passes and frequent kickoffs in the endzone.

Forest View, with the wind at their back in the second period, popped home two more quick touchdowns — the first on a 19-yard scamper by Joe Difatta with 3:25 left until halftime and the second, just 1:12 later on a Petran-to-Ray Michaelsen aerial that covered 27 yards — to carry a 21-6 cushion to the locker room.

Both teams volleyed within the 30-yard lines throughout the third period, but Conant was back knocking at the door when Johnson carried home a seven-yard handoff with 7:12 remaining in the contest to shave Forest View's margin to 21-12. Schafer's two-point conversion pass attempt, though, fell incomplete.

The Falcons iced the decision with 3:26 left when junior runningback Bob Jenovai, shook free for a 10-yard TD jaunt while finishing with 71 yards in just 11 carries — all in the second half.

"Jenovai gave us another threat back there," Lussow recognized. "He'll need a little more work on his timing, but he's one of those elusive runners."

Lussow also sang the praises of his defense which permitted the 0-7 Cougars 230 yards of offense, but only two scores.

"Bill Simon at linebacker and Steve Chromick, our middle guard, really plugged the holes well all night. I knew Conant would be a formidable opponent and the way they ran at us at times . . . they looked awfully good."

In evening their Mid-Suburban League South Division record at 3-3 and raising their over-all mark to 3-4, the Falcons received a balanced game from all-conference quarterback Jim Petran who hit six passes for 65 yards and contributed another 74 stripes on the ground in nine running attempts.

"It's good to see him have the game he's capable of playing," Lussow said. "This game did a lot to build individual confidence as well as for the entire team."

Meadows treats grads to 36-6 win

by BOB GALLAS

The Rolling Medowas Mustangs exploded for 22 points in the first nine minutes Friday night and kept going to crush Waukegan West 36-6 for a homecoming victory.

Led by offensive mainstay Ken Barro and a stingy defense that gave the Raiders a total rushing offense of minus two yards, the Mustangs scored on a safety with only two minutes gone in the game and never trailed.

The win was the third in a row for the revived Mustangs (4-3) who now must close out their season with games against tough Prospect and powerhouse Hersey.

The Mustangs simply rolled over the outmanned and outsized Raiders who are still looking for their first win of the season after six setbacks.

Rolling Meadows put up 271 yards total offense, 158 in a ground game that often met with little resistance from Waukegan West. Meadows also passed for 113 yards.

Playing most of the final period with substitutes, Meadows had a chance for a shutout win, but lost out with 45 seconds left in the game when the Raiders' Daniel Jadrich drove in from the four yard line. The attempt for the two-point conversion failed.

Sharing the offensive spotlight with Barro, who scored two touchdowns and carried for 93 yards in 18 carries, was Mustang quarterback Ken Breitbeil.

Ken Breitbeil

Breitbeil also ran for two touchdowns, including a 27 yard sprint when he ran away from a Raider defender who was holding on to his jersey. Breitbeil also passed for another touchdown, a 34-yard effort to Mark Miner.

Linebacker Tim Jacobsen spearheaded a tough Meadows defense, anchored by Mike Holthe, Jim Hattory, Jim Broderick and Bill Wissen.

Bill Dickinson first put the Mustangs on the board before a large homecoming crowd that braved the chilly temperatures and stiff wind. Dickinson tackled West's Reggie Grover in the Mustang endzone for a two-point safety with 6:52 left in the first quarter.

Getting the ball back on the ensuing Raider kickoff, it took only one play for Breitbeil to guide his troops to paydirt. Breitbeil, a 6-foot-2 170 pound senior, eluded the grasp of a defender and scampered 27 yards to a touchdown that made it 8-0 with 6:19 left in the first period. Denny Drolet's attempt for the extra point kick failed.

Stopping the Raiders cold, the Mustangs again scored with 1:58 left in the first period on a seven yard run by Barro. Barro set up the touchdown himself with a 34 yard run that just missed a score. Bill Wissen's extra point kick made it 15-0.

Seconds later the Mustangs were threatening to make it a romp when Paul Schweikert picked off an errant Raider pass for Meadows at the 50-yard line and returned 18 yards to the Waukegan 32-yard line with 1:12 left in the period.

Three plays later, Breitbeil hit end Miner who took it 34 yards for another Meadows touchdown. Wissen's kick made it 22-0, Rolling Meadows, with only seven seconds gone in the second quarter.

Less than a minute later, Meadows' Al Peterson picked off another Raider pass and returned 10 yards to the Waukegan 27 yard line, but the Mustangs couldn't capitalize and ended up punting.

Waukegan West installed a shotgun offense for the game, but it didn't appear to help their offense. Mustang defenders were continually breaking through to sack Raider ball carriers for sizeable losses.

Coming out of the halftime locker-room with a 22-0 lead, the Mustangs added to the score with 3:40 left in the third quarter on a one yard run by Breitbeil. Wissen's kick made it 29-0, Meadows.

The final score of the game for Meadows came with 4:45 left in the fourth quarter when Barro carried four yards for a score. Wissen's kick made it 36-0.

The Raiders' touchdown with :45 seconds left wrapped up the scoring.

Waterfowlers taking aim

It's that time of the year.

Jack Frost has created his usual masterpiece oil painting on the leaves of the trees, hunters have completed construction of their camouflaged blinds and the Illinois Department of Conservation has blessed the event with an encouraging waterfowl report.

This is duck season.

Beginning at noon Wednesday and continuing through Dec. 10, thousands of hunters statewide will crouch in their inconspicuous cover, eyeing closely the action of their three dozen wooden decoys and occasionally piercing the air with the shrill staccato of a caller.

About the only ingredient missing from an otherwise promising recipe is a sharp blast of arctic air that will nudge the waterfowl into their migration patterns.

Although three days remain before the noon opener for Illinois shooters on Wednesday, it may not be enough time for even the most astute waterfowlers to properly prepare for the campaign.

The most commonly overlooked prerequisite to a successful day in the marsh is properly functioning equipment and gear.

There is nothing more aggravating than that pin-hole leak in the foot of your waders that allows the steady stream of 34-degree water to irrigate your toes while you're anchoring the decoys.

The frustration of a jamming shotgun or misaligned sights ranks a close second in the hunter's dilemma.

Of equal importance is the waterfowler's ability to identify his target before squeezing the trigger. Recognizing the species of duck in the precious seconds it takes to wing over the trees and across the slough has gained increasing significance with Illinois' adoption of the point system bag limit.

The uninformed hunter who drops a bird in the opening hour of shooting and then discovers it is a 100-point redhead, is through for the day.

To refresh you with the point values of migratory waterfowl:

100 points — Redheads.

90 points — Mallard hens, wood ducks, black ducks and hooded mergansers.

35 points — Mallard drakes, ringnecks, wigeon, goldeneye, bufflehead, owld squaws, all scoters, ruddy and all other mergansers.

10 points — Pintail, blue-winged teal, green-winged teal, gadwall, shoveller and scaup.

The daily bag limit is reached when the point value equals or exceeds 100 points. Canvasbacks are protected statewide. The accompanying chart should help you identify the different species of waterfowl once they are bagged.

Hunters are urged to visit skeet or trap shooting facilities before challenging the marsh, not only to sharpen skills, but to test the firearm for accuracy and operation.

After all of the pre-hunting preparations have been completed, the waterfowler can cast his sights on what cautiously opimistic biologists predict will be an above-normal season.

Based on mild weather conditions in Canada during the nesting season, the Canada goose population should be up and Illinois can expect from 375,000 to 400,000 birds winging through.

Ducks got off good late hatches in northern nesting areas and what initially appeared to be only an average population now looks much better.

Habitat, which plays a big factor in how long the birds will remain in Illinois, is rated fair to good. Southern Illinois has good habitat, especially at Caryle Lake, Oakwood Bottoms and Rend Lake.

Midwest duck hunting dates

ILLINOIS — Oct. 22 (noon) to Dec. 10. After the Oct. 22 opener, shooting hours will be one-half hour before sunrise to sunset. Daily bag — point system. State duck stamp required.

WISCONSIN — Oct. 1 to Nov. 19. Daily bag — point system.

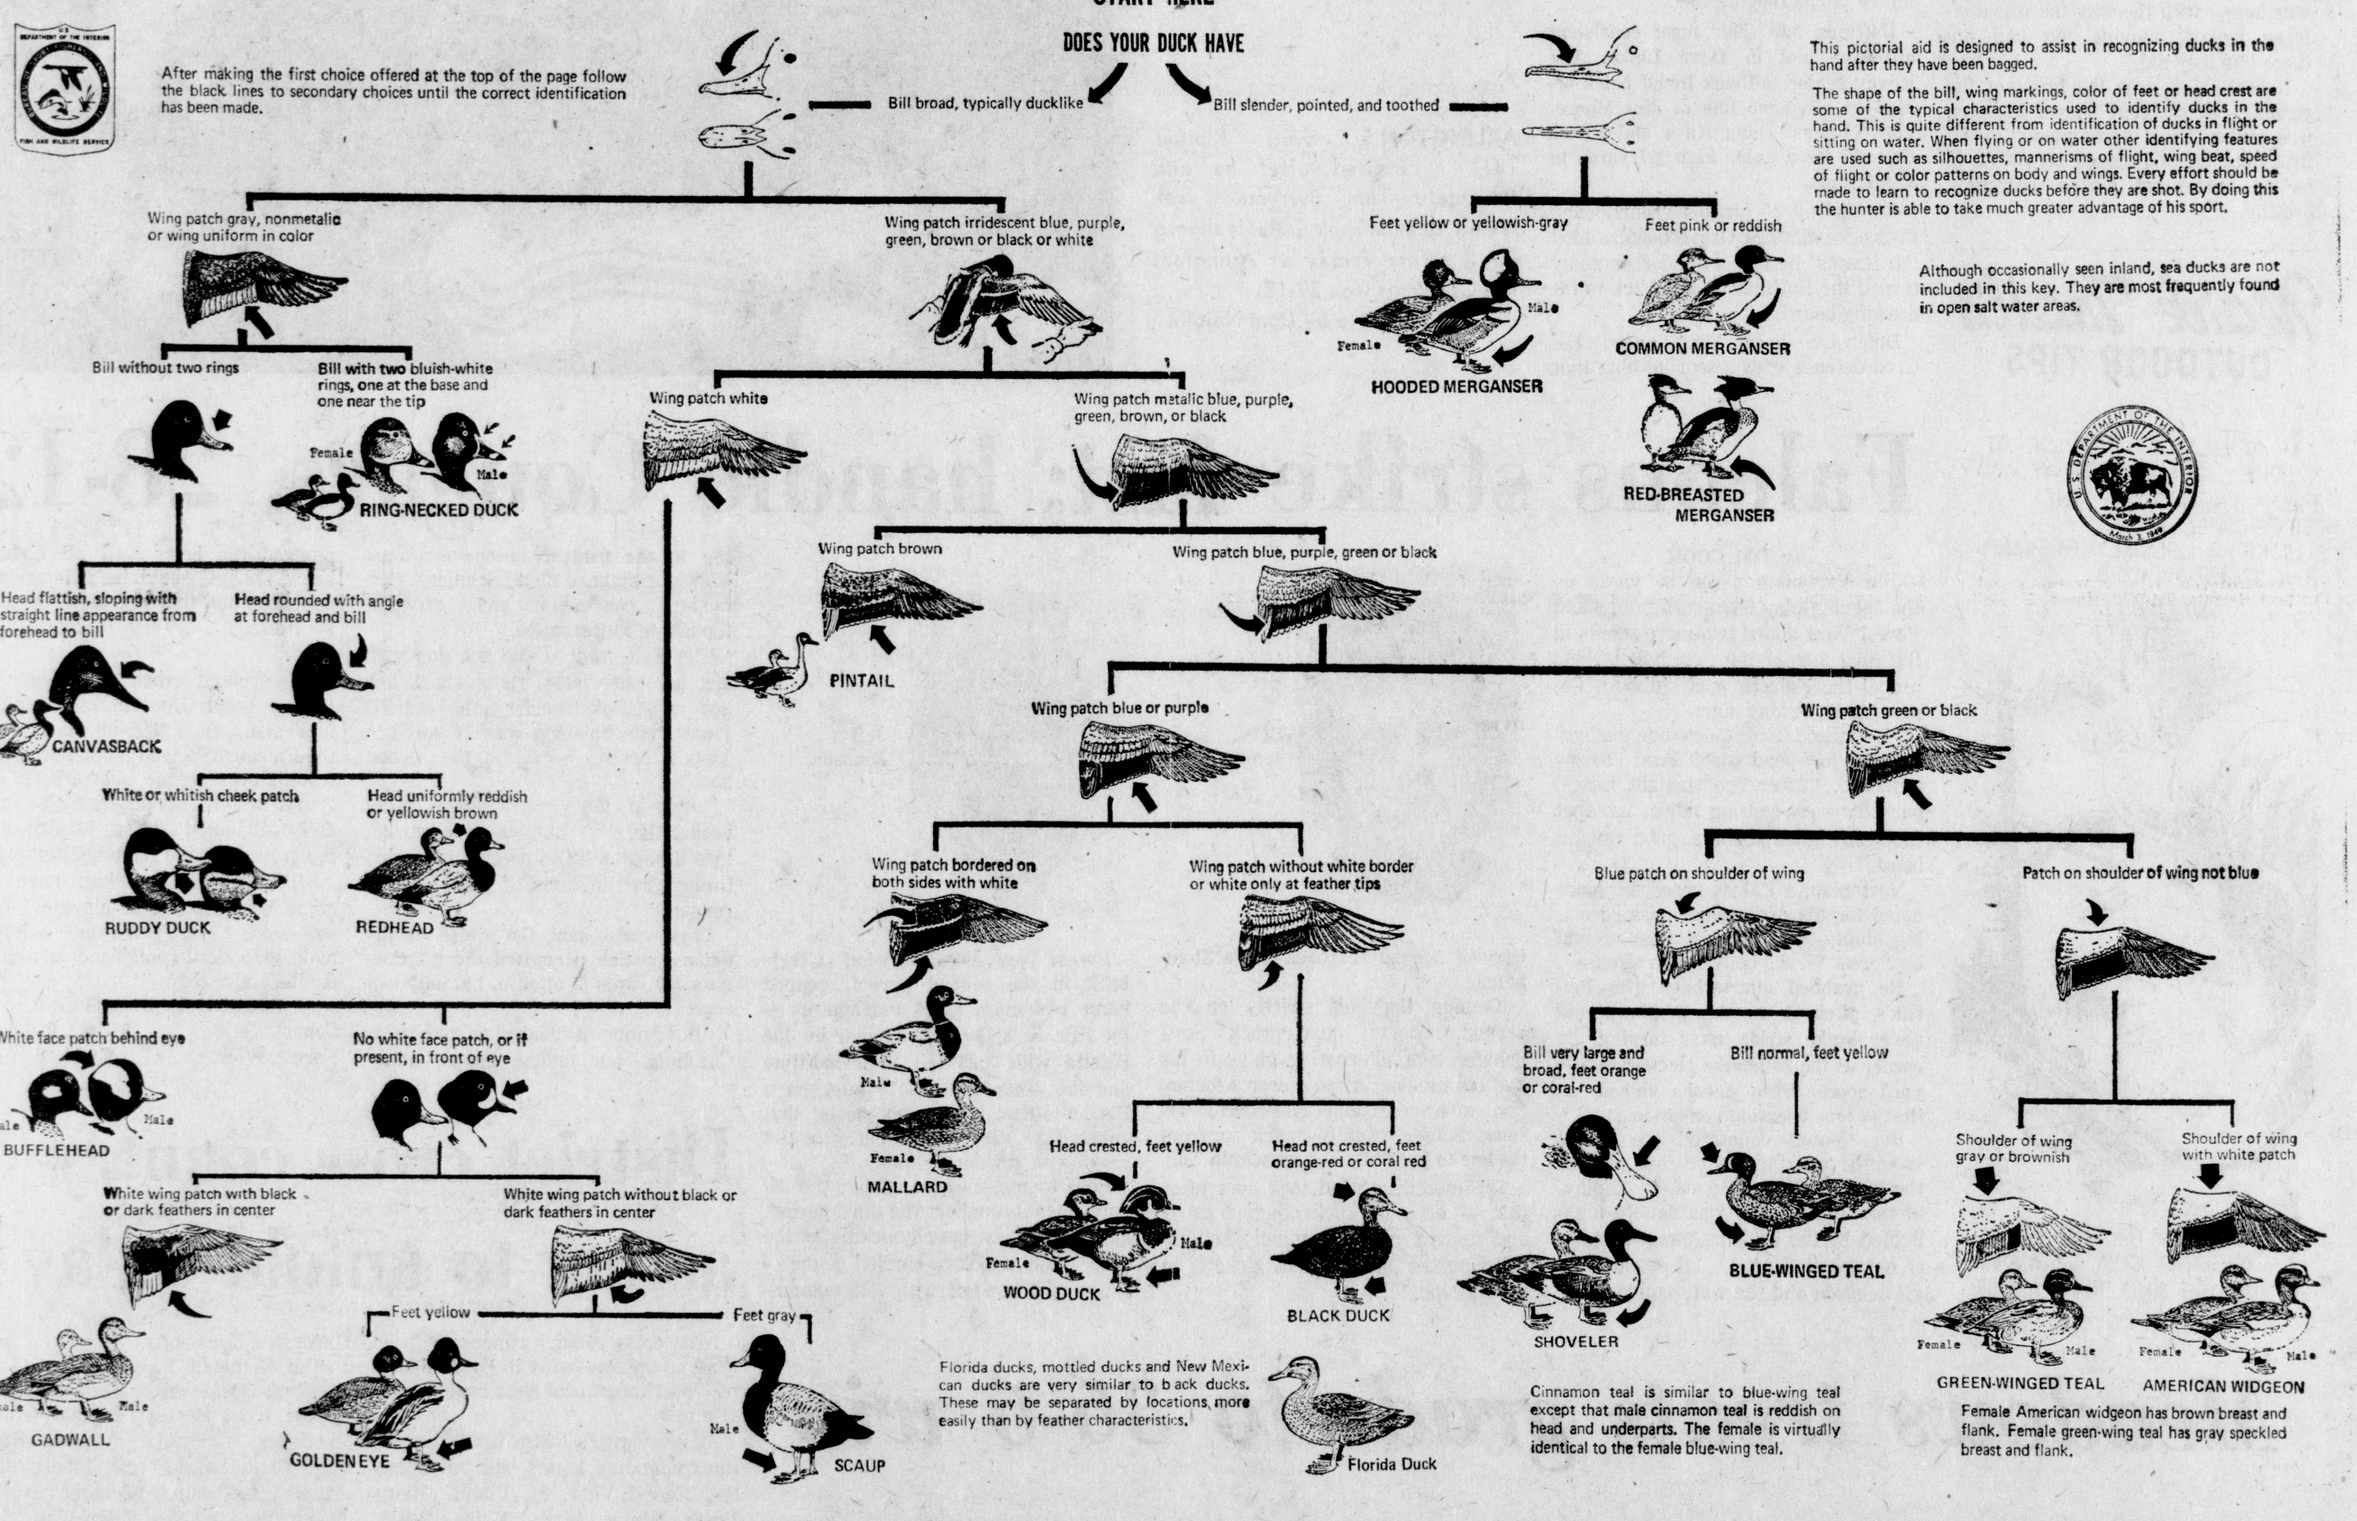
MINNESOTA — Oct. 1 to Nov. 19. Shooting hours are one-half hour before sunrise to 4 p.m. Daily bag — four duck, two-mallard limit.

IOWA — Oct. 4 to Oct. 11 and Oct. 25 to Nov. 30. Shooting hours are one-half hour before sunrise to sunset. Daily bag — point system.

INDIANA — Oct. 29 to Dec. 2 and Dec. 17 to Dec. 31. Shooting hours are one-half hour before sunrise to sunset. Daily bag — four ducks, with no more than two can be mallards, wood ducks or black mallards or one of each.

MICHIGAN — Oct. 8 to Nov. 26. Shooting hours are assigned by DNR. Bag limit — point system.

Duck Identification-Guide For Hunters



This pictorial aid is designed to assist in recognizing ducks in the hand after they have been bagged.

The shape of the bill, wing markings, color of feet or head crest are some of the typical characteristics used to identify ducks in the hand. This is quite different from identification of ducks in flight or sitting on water. When flying or on water other identifying features are used such as silhouettes, mannerisms of flight, wing beat, speed of flight or color patterns on body and wings. Every effort should be made to learn to recognize ducks before they are shot. By doing this the hunter is able to take much greater advantage of his sport.

Although occasionally seen inland, sea ducks are not included in this key. They are most frequently found in open salt water areas.

Spawning salmon on hunger strike

by JIM COOK

Five guys, 11 hours, one fish!

That was the exasperating score of a charter boat fishing escapade to Muskegon, Mich. last weekend. The backdrop couldn't have been more perfect, though.

Autumn in Michigan is strictly picture postcard material with its white sand outlining the deep blue of Lake Michigan.

Fishing reports throughout the week indicated the 15-20 pound coho salmon and 30-35 pound chinnok (king) were congregating both in the Big Lake and in the wind-protected confines of adjacent Lake Muskegon.

Captain Gary Zilian piloted his 35-foot Lamprey boat into relatively placid Lake Michigan where the water was barely 35 feet deep.

We began trolling a variety of lures and got two relatively quick hits on a silver Charger. The first — which Zilian predicted to be a big king — hopped on and off before Ducks Unlimited Executive Secretary Ken McCreary could pull the rod out of the holder.

The second was a small coho that danced at boatside before spitting the bait back at the boat. With zero success by noon, we chugged into little Lake Muskegon where a number of anglers were snagging from anchored boats.

Zilian, feverishly trying to find the right combination of lure and depth, mounted seven flatfish on our lines and warned us to react quickly.

"Some of these big kings will hit and run to the bottom and foul the lines," Gary said. "Let them run, but keep your rod tip up."

Bill Cook finally broke the empty-cooler jinx by wrestling with a fat nine-pound female coho that fishing buddy Bill Drabant promised to smoke and Jay Harker promised to eat.

Toward dusk, the kings constantly broke water around our boat, but refused our offerings. "I think they're more interested in spawning than feeding," Gary admitted. Who could blame them?

Kent State victims' funds prompts dispute

When the concerns of churches or church people collide — or even gently touch — with issues that are perceived as generally secular, one can expect a lot of raised hackles.

When those concerns ars also accompanied by misinformation, the results can be truly alarming.

A dramatic instance of both those principles can be seen over the recent controversy stirred by reports that United Methodist Church's Board of Church and Society was channeling trial expense money to the victims or families of victims of the Kent State tragedy.

SOME NEWSPAPER accounts, at the time of the Aug. 27 court decision absolving the Ohio officials and guardsmen of personal liability for the Kent State deaths, said the Board of Church and Society was paying up to $235,000 in court costs.

World of Religion
by David E. Anderson

"Telephones began to ring and mail to arrive asking whether this was true and what authority the board had to spend denominational funds this way," said Winston Taylor, a denominational communications official.

Taylor made these points about the fund, known as the Kent State Due Process of Law Funds:

• It was established in 1973 by the board to seek justice for the families of the Kent State shootings, but did not use a penny of Methodist money.

• It raised its money through a direct mail solicitation to some 555,000 persons on commercial mailing lists.

No denominational mailing list was used and no Methodist conferences, congregations or members were solicited.

It is the church's fund and belongs to the church, but does not include funds from the church, said the Rev. John Adams of the Board of Church and Society.

Questions might be raised as to the propriety of Adams' and the board's involvement in the Kent State episode and whether the board's actions conformed to United Methodist principles.

But those questions cannot be properly dealt with if the nature of the involvement is the subject of misconstruction and lack of information. That seems to have been the case with the board and the Kent State fund.

Ask Andy

French invented metric system

Andy sends a complete 20-volume set of the Merit Students Encyclopedia to Scott Benoit, 11, of Utica, N.Y., for his question:

WHEN DID THE METRIC SYSTEM BEGIN?

The metric system was invented in France almost two centuries ago. Since that time, other countries gave up their sloppy measuring systems and adopted Systeme International d'Unites. The streamlined name for this International System of Units is simply SI.

Actually, the complete story comes in two parts. The first chapter began in Neolithic days, when people started hefting and comparing weights and pacing off distances. These people of the New Stone Age gave up roaming and hunting in favor of settled communities. They invented measuring units to cope with building, farming and trading. Different communities invented different units, and none of them was very precise.

Now and then a ruling monarch tried to establish set units throughout his domain. Often extra units were added by conquerors and visiting traders. Through the centuries, the worldwide measuring systems became a mishmash, with each country using its own units. This part of the story ended in the 1600s, when several thoughtful people decided that a reformed system, usable by all, was way overdue.

One practical solution was suggested in 1670 by Gabriel Mouton, the vicar of a church in Lyons, France. His sound idea was to base an entire measuring system on a natural unit which could not be disputed. He suggested a unit of length equal to one 21,600th part of the earth's circumference. In the language of arcs and circles, this distance is called one minute.

The next year, 1671, a French astronomer named Jean Picard used the laws of motion to fix on a basic unit. His standard-length unit was based on the one-second swing of a pendulum. These and several ideas failed to get very far, but they did get people thinking about the need for a simplified, unified system for weights and measures.

In 1790, the French government asked its Academy of Sciences to solve the problem in detail. A commission of experts worked out a complete system of weights and measures based on the meter-length unit and using the decimal system of tens. The French government approved this in 1795 — but it was not adopted by the French people until 1840.

Since then the basic system has been refined and improved. By 1850, it was adopted by Holland, Spain, Italy and Greece. In the next 50 years, 45 more countries joined up. Others joined the metric nations one by one. Now Canada and Australia are changing — and the only major nonmetric country is the United States.

Andy sends a 7-volume set of C.S. Lewis' "Chronicles of Narnia" to Darrell Monks, 11, of Bridgeport, Conn., for his question:

WHAT EXACTLY IS A RAIN FOREST?

In order to qualify, a rain forest must get at least 80 inches of rainfall every year. Usually this deluges down from afternoon thunderstorms that occur almost every day. The forest is crowded with tall tree trunks that reach 100 to 150 feet high. Their leafy tops form a dense canopy that shuts out the light. Below the giants is a level of shorter trees. Sometimes there are no bushes or low growing plants because the treetops shut out the sunlight.

There are tropical rain forests in South and Central America, Africa, India and Southeast Asia. All of them are populated with vast assortments of birds and insects — and chattering monkeys play among the high boughs. The tree-lined slopes of our northwestern Cascades get enough annual downpour to qualify as a rain forest. But this region is not a typical tropical rain forest because the winters are too cool.

Terror haunts TV movie on Austin sniper killings

by JOAN HANAUER

NEW YORK (UPI) — As the sniper fires from the tower of the University of Texas, killing and wounding people whose faces he can't make out, he epitomizes the kind of random, anonymous terror that haunts our era.

The sniper is the pivotal figure in "The Deadly Tower, " a two-hour made-for-television movie based on the story of Charles Whitman, who terrorized Austin nine years ago. It will be aired on this week's "NBC's Saturday Night at the Movies" from 8-10 p.m., replacing the previously scheduled "New Centurions," which will be shown at a later date.

Whitman was a Univeristy of Texas student who, on a very hot night, killed his mother and his wife with a knife. In the morning he carted his old Marine Corps footlocker, loaded with a small arsenal, to the top of the University's 300-foot tower building.

THE RETELLING of the story of his shooting rampage, in which he killed 13 persons and wounded 33 others, is taut and tense, devoted to action rather than talk, to what people actually did rather than what characters might have been thinking.

Little is known about the forces that drove Whitman toward his killing spree, except that he suffered severe headaches, feelings of stress and anxiety and compulsions toward violence. He wrote a note after killing his wife in which he requested an autopsy after the death he was preparing to meet. The autopsy revealed a brain tumor.

What is not known, and what writer William Douglas Lansford resists the temptation to speculate on, is what Whitman was thinking, what reasons he gave himself for what he was doing.

That means that Kurt Russell as Whitman has an almost impossible job — he must portray a man driven to extreme violence, without any idea what was going on inside his character. He does an excellent job of portraying a grim, strangely calm Whitman who just occasionally has a flash of rage.

Richard Yniguez, plays Whitman's nemisis, Ramiro Martinez, a Mexican-American Austin policeman who stalked the killer on his tower overlooking the campus. In this treatment, Yniguez is one of only four Chicanos on the Austin force at the time and had just failed to make sergeant despite excellent qualification. Martinez today is a Texas state trooper.

Yniguez plays the part with sensitivity, credibility and fear. Fear is what realism and common sense demand because scared, not cardboard stoic, is what any sane man would feel facing an armed psychotic killer.

Fear, after all, is what this story is about — fear of the unknown, the unexplained, the chaos which can envelop innocent bystanders. Director Jerry Jameson keep the pace fast, the action constant, the violence no more bloody than it must be, like the muted popping sound of the sniper's gun.

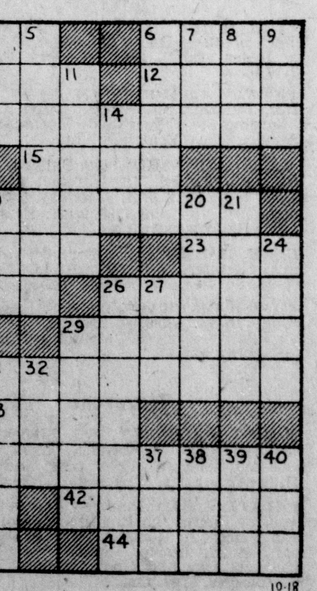
Yesterday's Answer



DAILY CRYPTOQUOTE – Here's how to work it:

A X Y D L B A A X R
is L O N G F E L L O W

One letter simply stands for another. In this sample A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophes, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

Fiddlers' day at hoedown city

by AL MESSERSCHMIDT

The fiddle's wail pierces the night air in downstate Shelbyville, Ill.

For the 20th time, an aspiring string musician improvises through the hoedown tune "Liberty." The gymnasium audience claps and stomps as the fiddler repeats the same basic chords over and over, but no one dances.

The fiddling, in the land where square dancing is king, is serious. Shelbyville is crowning another Illinois state fiddle champion.

Past fiddle champions, like Chlores Worlow of Mt. Carmel, Ill., George Portz of O'Fallon, Ill., and Larry Hippler of Newton, Ill., may not be regular performers on Chicago rock-music stations, but for the four hours of competition, the fiddlers dominate local station WCBH.

Portz, the fiddling winner in 1969, and Worlow, who won in 1974, open battered fiddle cases an hour before the gymnasium lights dim and the judging begins. In the hallways and classrooms of Shelbyville High School, where state fiddle champions have been crowned since 1965, fiddlers prepare for a two-tune appearance before judges and audience by "jamming" with other contestants.

Portz, 22, a restaurant manager, stands below a stairwell and strokes through a bluegrass tune with banjo accompaniment.

"You can't ever tell about a contest like this," he says. "It's based on style and what the judges want to hear. I was number one once and have been two and three since, but I can't seem to win it again."

To win, a contestant must conform to strict rules.

The judges are imports from across the state line, members of Indiana's fiddlers' association, who sit in a nearby schoolroom and listen only to the fiddler's performance. To prevent favoritism, contestants are "numbers" to the judges who do not hear comments from the master of ceremonies or audience applause.

Other rules bar electric amplification, "cross tuning, trick playing or novelty tunes." Accompanists are limited to basic, backup chords and cannot play any melody in the hoedown and waltz that are required playing for each contestant.

Tunes like "Black Mountain Rag," "Listen to the Mocking Bird" and "Orange Blossom Special" are barred. Music lessons take a backstage to old-time fiddling ability, rhythm, timing and tone quality.

Like many contestants, Portz had little music training. "I had lessons in grade school," he says. "I learned by playing . . . and by listening to other people like my grandfather.

"We play concerts, mostly in colleges, and try to promote fiddling in the St. Louis area," Portz says. "We try to master and develop different fiddling styles."

With Portz' accompaniment, his grandfather's style is the first to pay off in the 1975 contest. Perry Biggs, of Brownstown, Ill., finishes second in the competition for "senior" fiddlers who are more than 70 years old.

Biggs, who is 81, a retired farmer and a carpenter, receives $20, a fiddle trophy and time for a quick bow before almost 520 paying customers after completing the "Missing Mule" hoedown.

The "senior" winner is Halbert Thornberry, one of the few contestants to wear a suit to the contest. Thornberry, whose glasses perch on the tip of his nose, is a retired engineering professor from the University of Illinois. Thornberry, 73, learned to fiddle at family square dances in western Kentucky and also won the "senior" title in 1973.

In a contest which is dominated by retired farmers who wear crew cuts, thin ties and once-a-week sports coats, the roll of entrants' home towns includes Illiopolis, Greenup, Vandalia, Stewardson, Tallula

FOR 20 YEARS, they've fiddled for prizes in Shelbyville, Ill.

Dear ol' Dad

Pop's special day in Illiniland is a 'second chance' for Dad to return to those golden days of youth

by MIKE KLEIN

Their hearts full of pride and a gleam in their eyes
With heads swimming light but still feeling right
With beanies and T-shirts and banners galore
They marched about town like seldom before
Blanketing lawns and parking lots, too
Jamming the bars and acting just twenty-two.

These are the fathers who brought home your first bike, who donned Santa's cap and gave a reassuring pat on the back, who fondly watched daughters grow from dolls to long dresses, who've seen sons become men and have sons of their own.

Older and rounder and losing their hair, the years are escaping these men we've called, "Dad." So it's doubly nice that one day in Champaign, they can back up the years and be college kids, too.

She is tall, graceful and gorgeous. Lore Jensen, who might some day step off Vogue magazine's cover and into your life, dabbles with her vodka gimlet. The young lady's father, Howard, coddles his dry martini. Immersed in light conversation, they are sitting at a wooden table which blocks quick access to the cigarette machine inside Second Chance, a house of spirits not very distant from the University of Illinois main campus.

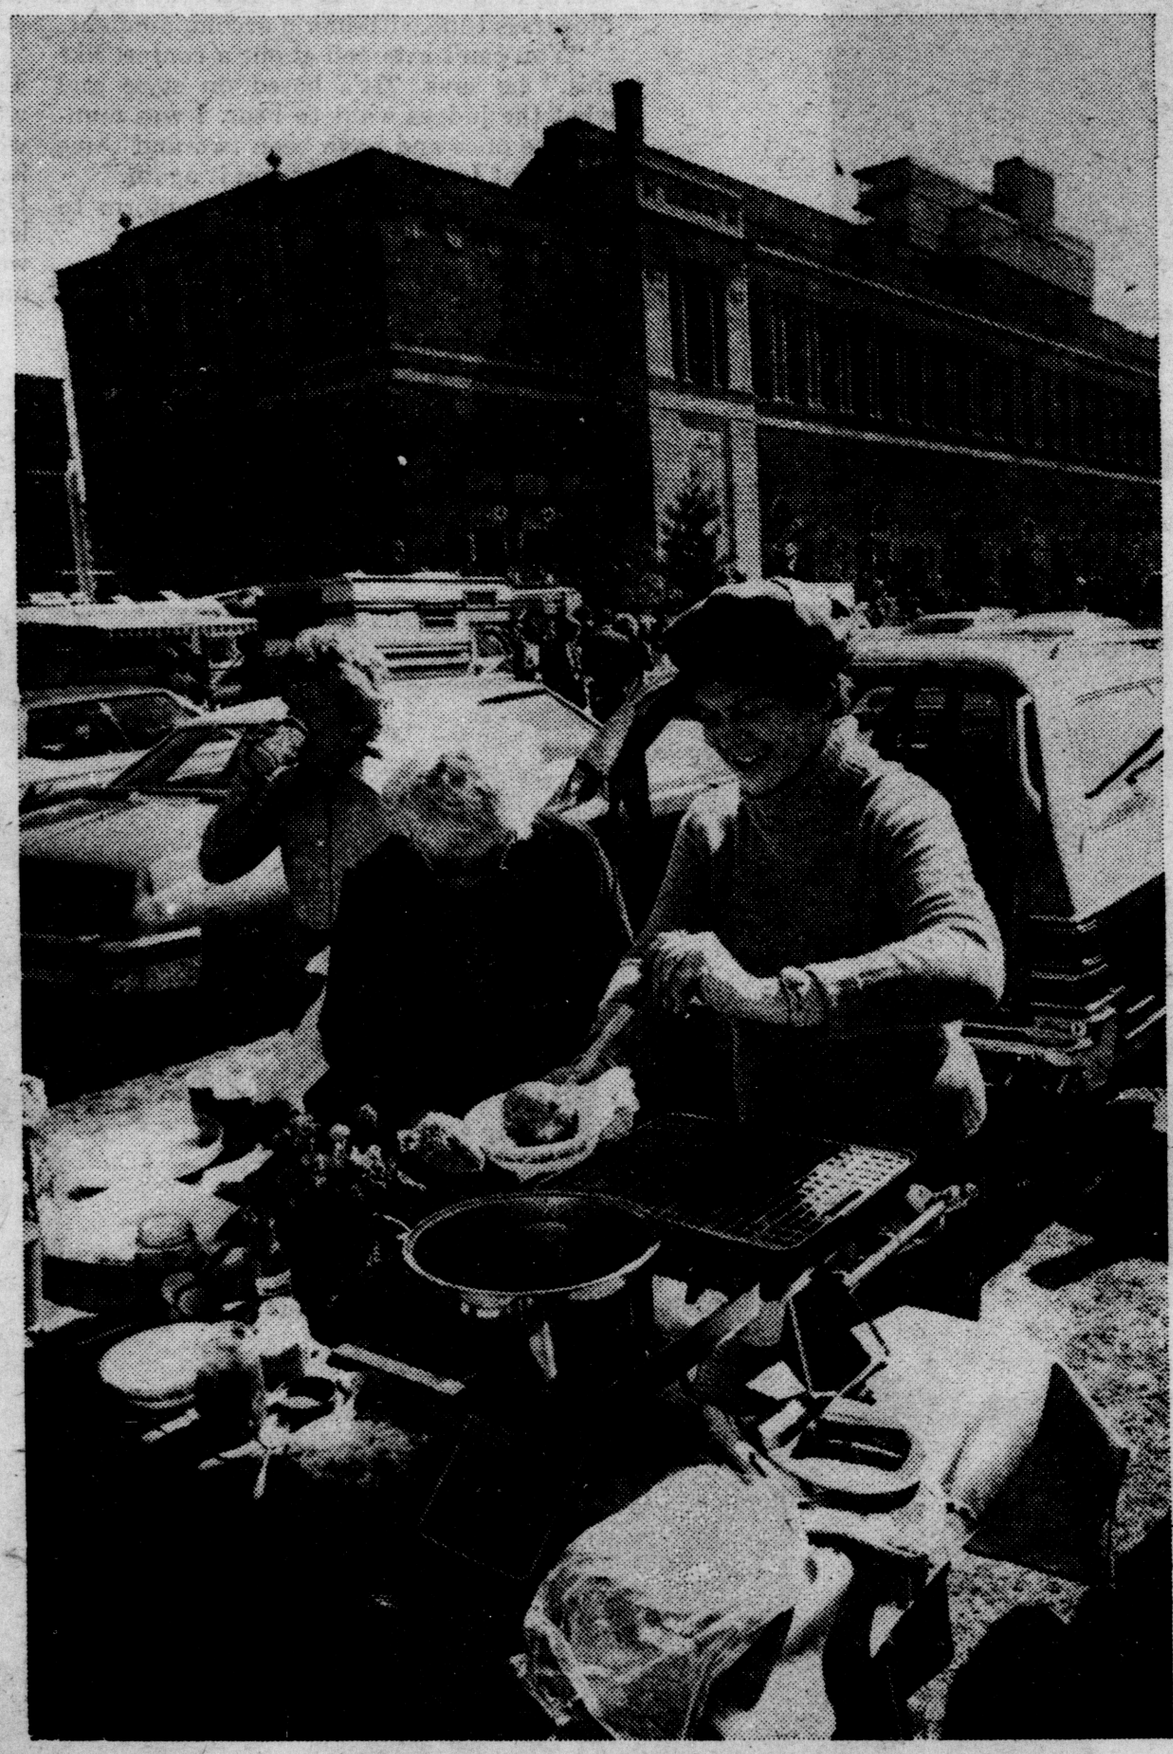
Across the street is Boni's. And up the avenue a few hundred yards is Dooley's. These are the night spots. Every big college town has them and a good bar generally looms of greater significance than a good library. Man cannot absorb the available educational truths unless his whistle has been sufficiently wetted. Night spots are spread around the business districts, mostly viewed in disdain by local citizens who, as grey hairs blend with expanded waistlines and varicose veins, regret they passed up their own youth.

You show your university ID card, maybe your drivers license, too, pay some cash and slosh down the product. When you are financially disabled, or have made a new friend for life, or at least one night, you begin nosing around for the door. It's there . . . someplace.

These are noisy joints which leave your ears ringing. A college bar without noise is no bar at all. Words become muffled, then lost forever, only to be repeated again. Second Chance is a juke-box joint. Little Richard, Dion, Brian Hyland, Martha and the Vandellas. Elton and Chicago are there, too, but this crowd pays for nostalgia . . . for the Shirelles and Lettermen, for Gary Puckett's Union Gap and Dylan. May Donny Osmond's little voice remain forever silent.

You can Bump or Hustle into the Hips Hall of Fame on Second Chance's little dance floor where hardly anyone bothers. And as the evening wears older hours, there is a loyal gathering around the backroom TV where Ohio State is seen embarrassing UCLA. Every Buckeye success brings roars of approval. This may be Illini flatland, but the First Commandment pertains: Big Ten Uber Alles!

The afternoon has wound down past six o'clock and Second Chance's five rooms are packed with fathers and sons, fathers and daughters. Carl Dillow, principal of West Aurora High School, wears a bright orange T-shirt which proclaims: "Illinette Dad." He is sharing a hearty laugh with daughter Carla, the Illinette in question. They are happy.



Today's tailgate special: Chili on pickles with onions.

Illinettes are every bit as important to Illini football as the two 46-yard lines in Memorial Stadium. These are the pom-pon girls. You can immediately identify one of these girls by her orange and blue uniform, the main feature being a garter worn above the right knee. And when they wiggle and jiggle in knee-high white patent-leather boots, they certainly do look sharp. On days when grand, old Illinois cannot muster a first down, there are still the Illinettes. And Chief Illiniwek, too.

Carla has been an Illinette for three years. She's very much a vibrant part of this great, enormous university which grew up alongside an innocent pair of Chicago to Louisiana railroad tracks. Folk artist Steve Goodman would later memorialize those rails and the country they cross with his composition, "The City of New Orleans."

This is nothing like what Carl Dillow knew when he attended little teachers' college Southern Illinois at Carbondale almost 30 years ago. "In the late Forties, it was Carter's Cafe off-campus at SIU," says Dillow amidst the growing uproar in Second Chance. "You had a choice of Coca-Cola or Seven-Up. That's quite a far cry from what we see here. If you wanted a beer, you had to go to the train station."

Carl has made three Dad's Day weekends and readily admits there's always, "a little serious drinking." It is obvious they are an extremely happy father and daughter. "Carla and I are very close," Dillow says. "It's just another opportunity to get together and share each other."

Carla joins in: "I figure since he's footing the bill he ought to get a little slice of it," she says, leaning forward for emphasis. "I've always been close to my dad. I've seen a lot of girls who have to be doing something all the time, going here or going there. With my dad, I feel I can just sit here and talk to him."

The Dillows and most everyone else inside this Second Chance backroom have immigrated from Memorial Stadium where, on Bob Zuppke's artificial field, they've witnessed Bob Blackman's Miracle. Blackman's Fighting Illini have defeated Washington State, 27-21, on this first sun-bleached Saturday afternoon in October.

The victory causes only pensive thoughts for one observer who perhaps longs for Zuppke, Grange and Butkus. He walks away muttering, "What are they

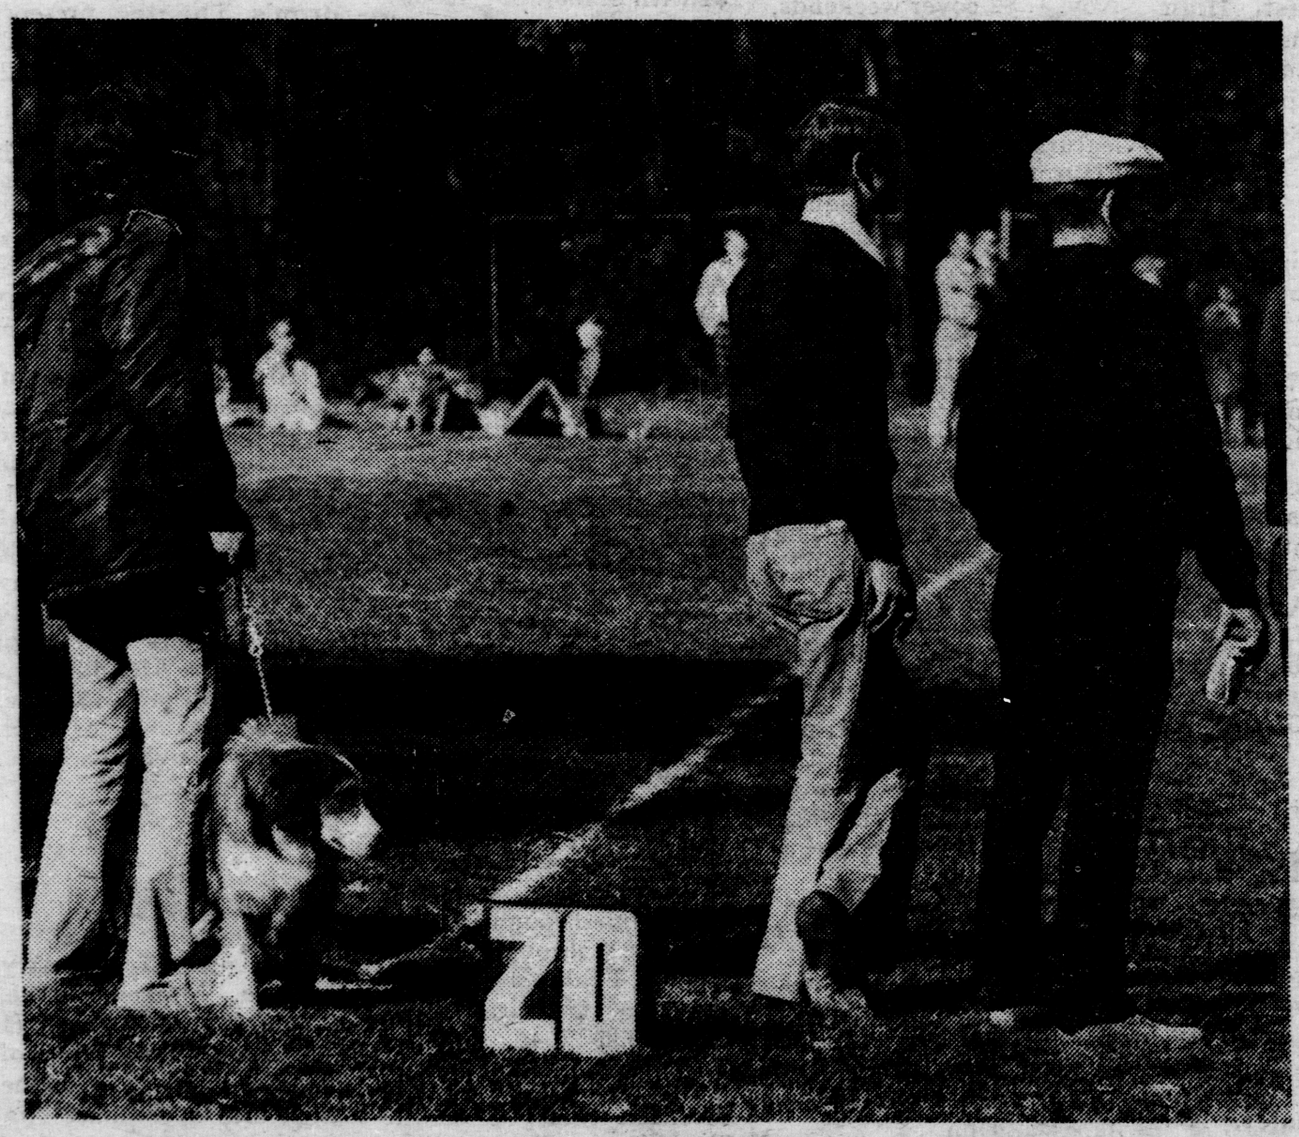
The early morning ritual: Park the car, open the trunk, have a beer, eat some chicken.



The crowd isn't limited to students and alumni.

Small-college alumni remember when . . .

by TOM WELLMAN

The kickoff was only seconds away, and the crowd was silent. The announcer on the PA system boomed. It was time for the National Anthem.

The 2,000 students, parents, faculty members and alumni stood and waited . . . 5, 10 and then 20 seconds. But there was nothing . . . only the sound of a phonograph playing nothing at all.

After 30 seconds, the announcer cut in without a trace of embarrassment: "We'll now pledge allegiance to the flag, due to technical difficulties."

Clearly this was no way to run a homecoming — if you believe in the precision of 100-piece marching bands, the importance of Goodyear blimps, the role of national TV and the glory of 10,000-person card sections.

Things, however, weren't always this way. Indeed, 10, 20 or 30 years ago Lake Forest College in north suburban Lake Forest knew how to run a homecoming as American as the World Series, as seasonal as the first frost and as memorable as your first true kiss.

The blimp and Howard Cosell were never present, but the rest of the trappings — the band, corsages, parades, cheerleaders and queen — were all part of the pageant.

But somewhere, perhaps between Vietnam and Watergate in the 1960s and 1970s, something changed at this coeducational college with its enrollment of 1,050 students.

What mattered on Saturday, Oct. 11, was not the rah-rah perfection that might be found at Champaign, Evanston, Columbus, Ohio or Madison, Wis.

What mattered that Saturday was that it was a perfect day for one unknown Midwestern college football team to play another unknown Midwestern college football team, on a grassy field sheltered by aged trees dressed in sunlit gold and red and brown leaves. What mattered, if you were returning to your alma mater for perhaps the first time in 10, 20 or 35 years, was that some of your old classmates might just be there to share the moment.

going to do with Michigan and Ohio State when they've got trouble beating the 401st best team in the country?"

The old guy says his name is John Anders. He's probably about 60 and describes himself as being "supervisor in a nonacademic department of the university." Friends this glorious autumn morning include veterinarian George Kingston and C.E. Kelley, a drywall contractor from Urbana, the town next door. They affectionately call Anders "The Jolly Leprechaun."

Anders, Kingston and Kelley are tailgaters. They arrive early Saturday morning at Memorial Stadium, open their trunks or drop the station wagon rear doors and begin indulging in fine foods and liquors. A folk band belts out midmorning entertainment from a portable stage behind the west grandstand. This is tailgating. There are hundreds of similar parties all around them.

It's only high noon but already Anders clearly feels no pain. Having a bit of a good time, you know. Kelley has taken charge of a charcoal grill which turns out hot dogs and bratwurst for anybody who's hungry. No charge, of course. "Whatcha doing, taking a survey on what we're drinking?" says the portly Anders, nattily attired in his Illini beanie, bright red shirt and green checked pants. John Anders drinks beer.

But if you don't want beer, he'll surely whip up something else. In front of Anders, on a portable metal table, are one tapper plus various bottles of Kamchatka vodka, Johnnie Walker scotch, Seagram's and Canadian Club whisky and Gordon's London Dry gin. Of lesser interest are one spatula and some paper towels.

Anders, Kelley and Kingston have been tailgating for seven years. It's getting more expensive. "Last year, we parked here for $100. That's for one season," says Anders. "This year, it's up to $250." There are other tailgating lots for $1,000, $500, $100 and a more reasonable $1.50. The cheapie is a bargain, even though you pay again next week.

The tailgating lots appear plenty well stocked, but Kelley says, "It's a little light today. Missouri game we were full." Tailgaters are a transient lot. "We'll makes the games at Wisconsin and Michigan State," says Anders, expressing the desire of Illini football fans. "We hope to chrissake we get a winner. Texas A&M beat our butts. We shoulda beat Missouri." They have been a starved lot. It's twelve years since Illinois played in the Rose Bowl. "C'mon, let's win this one!" chortles Anders. Then he refills with beer.

Washington State departed Champaign a 21-19 loser one year ago when Illini quarterback Jeff Hollenbach found Jeff Chrystal with a touchdown pass 34 seconds before the last gun. And the Cougars have apparently not forgotten that televised disaster. As more than 51,000 glumly watch, Washington State moves out to a 14-0 lead early in the second quarter.

Illini head coach Blackman, whose job security is being discussed in the newspapers, has chosen senior Jim Kopatz over sophomore Kurt Steger at starting quar-

Homecoming means visit to the past for alumni

By 10 a.m. Saturday, the campus, nestled near the bluffs which shelter this very exclusive suburb from the relentless waves of Lake Michigan, was beginning to awaken.

By 10 a.m. they were playing an intercollegiate soccer game behind the fieldhouse and perhaps as many as 400 students and alumni crowded along the sidelines.

For many, the soccer game was what mattered. There was no reason to expect at 1:30 p.m. a topflight football game played by NFL-bound crunchers. The college does not recruit football heroes, and the Foresters had lost all four of their previous games. Many students decided to watch the World Series on TV instead.

Not so with some of the college's alumni. By noon the blue-jean-clad students mingled with a trickle of neatly dressed alumni at a college-sponsored outdoor picnic.

They had returned from Winnetka, Chicago, Elk Grove Village, Arlington Heights, and even Philadelphia and Grand Rapids. They stood somewhat tentatively, like arriving freshmen, near cardboard signs that read "Class of 1965" or "Class of 1955." They were home again.

To attend a small college football game is to wander a thousand miles in spirit from the jammed and mammoth football coliseums for universities which enroll 20,000 or 30,000 students.

Dogs mingle with the people that mingle on the sidelines. Golden retrievers, airedales, collies and cocker spaniels wander unleashed. One Lake Forest fan even escorted a lanky and pretentious Russian wolfhound. When the dogs weren't eyeing other dogs, they seemed to consider a streaker's dash across the field to halt the football action.

Since there is no 100-piece band or slavishly perfect group of pom-pon girls to stand near the end zone, the vacuum is filled by students, who lie on the grass and drink beer. In the other end zone, more into the shadows, small boys toss footballs and emulate their larger-than-life heroes.

The game, in short, is a giant lawn party, with a conviviality present that blends students, parents, alumni and faculty members into a diverse but relaxed group.

Yet, no one forgets that the momentary purpose is football. Before the stands could even fill, the Lake Forest "Big Red" took a surprising 6-0 lead over Carleton College, a similarly small college from Minnesota.

By the time the October chill could be felt in the shadows stretching towards the midfield stripe, the spectators were cheering. The Foresters had brought home a 13-6 victory for their homecoming fans.

But the game was only a vehicle towards the real point of homecoming at Lake Forest College, for it was nothing more than a sunny and crisp prelude to the kind of nostalgia-sharing which would follow.

The students on Saturday went off somewhere to a beer blast. The alumni crowded into the foyer of the four-year-old sports center, where the grey-suited class of 1935 spilled drinks and memories on the corduroy-clad class of 1965.

Into the evening, at cocktail parties and at dinner dances, the tales of the past flowed like the scotch and bourbon served by uniformed bartenders. It was a moment not to be taken lightly. To these men and women, college life had not been a faceless way station. Today was an important moment to recollect the joys and even the sorrows of four years of college.

Illini dads find yearly fountain of youth terback. This is not a popular decision. When Kopatz nearly throws an interception on his second series, he is summarily dismissed from further involvement. Steger comes forward to the resounding applause in Memorial Stadium.

They say Steger is the next great Illini signal caller. You know, he's "got the tools." And Steger does move Illinois rapidly downfield as the first period wanes. But the drive falters.

The Cougars respond with an 80-yard drive. As quarterback John Hopkins completes passes of 15, 18 and 18 yards, Washington State assumes its 14-0 lead. Illini fortunes appear forlorn. "There's nothing to it," says a disgruntled man in Section GG. "They're blowing them out. This is awful."

If nothing else, when Illinois is losing, you can watch the flock of helicopters and bi-planes which pass overhead, little messages on their tails. "Flying Tomato Brothers" make their second-quarter appearance. "All the way with Mister Donut," says another. "Go Illini. Do It For Dad." The public address announcer says this is also "Mattoon Day." So all those people, perhaps 50, stand up and cheer for themselves.

Interest redirects to center stage as Illini defensive back Bill Cerney intercepts and goes 49 yards for a touchdown. The game is tied at 14-14 when Steger moves Illinois 55 yards after a Cougar punt. His scoring play is an 11-yard pass to Joe Smalzer. Bruce Beaman will intercept on Washington State's first ensuing play from scrimmage. But just one minute remains and the Illini do not score.

The trend, however, cannot be mistaken. With its opportunistic defense plus Steger at quarterback, the Illini are the superior football team. After Beaver kicks his long field goal for a 17-14 lead, Blackman's Boys never trail again.

This disperses the Dad's Day crowd in a mood for merriment. So a happy group of fathers and sons, fathers and daughters converges upon Second Chance.

Brian Steppig, who keeps your glass full at Second Chance, has allowed that, "It usually gets pretty rowdy in here. Not any real trouble or anything tough." Lore Jensen will say, "The Dads get crazy. They're all in the bars having the best time with all the girls. They have a great time and Moms don't know. Dad's Day is one of the wildest weekends. Everybody goes absolutely bananas."

Howard Jensen, like Carl Dillow and so many other fathers, has come south for his third Dad's Day, journeying from Homewood. He says pretty much the same things that other fathers have said about Dad's Day. Howard talks about being with his kids (Lore is a junior and Tom a freshman), sharing the good times and meeting new people.

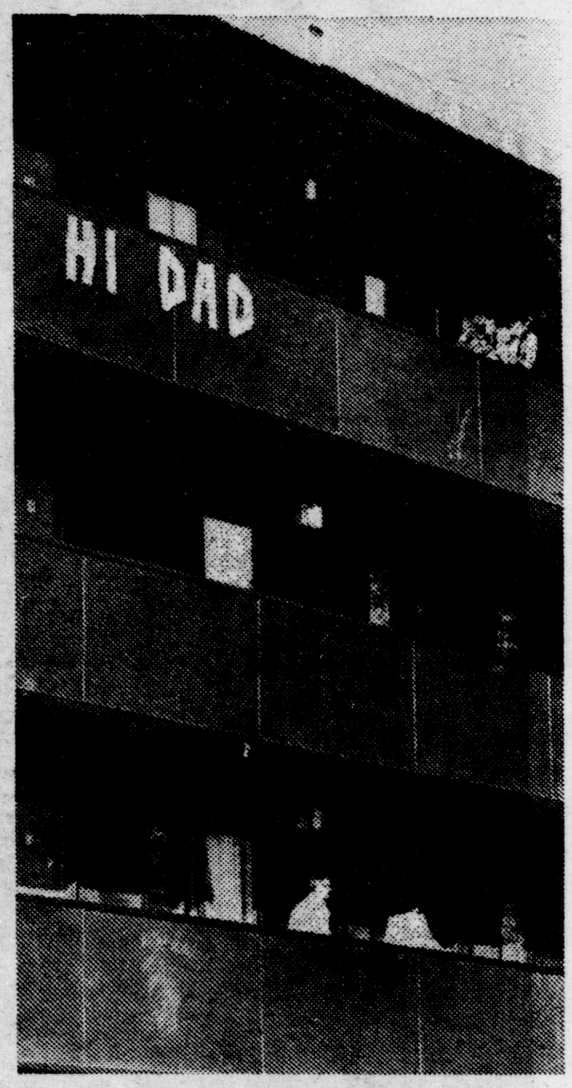
"Hey," he says, "I was rooting for that football team today. It's beautiful. It really is a great experience." Lore adds this thought: "Tell them about when you lost your car in the cornfield." That occurred on his first campus visit. They parked behind Assembly Hall, took a long trek and got sorta lost.

Saturday night reaches out toward early Sunday morning. The faces inside Second Chance are different. The Dillows and Jensens are long gone for dinner. This is Joe Krieger's fourth Dad's Day. And Frank Major's second.

A very well-liquored young man named Don says there's a $100 bet with his father on who'll pass out first. Don's father is twisting the night away over by the women's washroom door. "I'm gonna be up 'til I barf or die, one of the two," says Don. "For $100, I'll do anything. If you got a shovel, make sure I get home."

Shorty Galley, the Ottawa postmaster, wants to talk about Dad's Day. "All you've got to do is look at these proud fathers and you can't help but make a story," says Shorty. "Everyone of these guys is proud of his son or daughter. I'm proud of my country. I'm proud of the University of Illinois."

Denise Atkinson says essentially the same thing, but in fewer words. "My parents are here," Denise says, "because they love me."



Dad's the winner.

A veteran fiddler

Fiddlin' the night away in downstate Illinois and Le Roy. Skokie— the "big city" suburb — stands out as the residence of Edgar Thornton, the only Chicago-area fiddler in the competition.

Thornton, 76, is a first-time entry in the state contest, but is an old-time fiddler. He played hoedowns with traveling bands in Iowa in the 1940's.

"I don't know how I'll do," he says. "I've always won first before . . . do you know "Irish Washerwoman?" The tune flows from his fiddle and is followed by a quick version of "San Antonio Rose."

For Thornton, who learned to fiddle from three uncles and two cousins "who all lived to be 90," the hoedown "Devil's Dream" and the "You And I Waltz" fall short of the points required for one of three "senior" division places.

"I'm still not afraid to play with anybody," he says. "I may come back."

Portz fares better in the "open" competition. When the judges announce five finalists, Portz and two other former champions, Hippler, who won first in 1968, 1970 and 1972, and Worlow, the defending champion, are included. Ernest Ringo, a retired welder from Shelbyville and a former president of the Illinois Fiddlers Assn., and Bret Howe, a music store owner, also prepare for the finals.

Portz is the first to the "finals" microphone. With a slight bend of the knees and a confident grin he milks "The Gray Eagle" from his fiddle. Worlow, a hair dresser from Mt. Carmel, offers a version of the "Cottonpatch Rag" to the judges and audience. Howe plays "Raggedy Ann" and Hippler plays the "Florida Blues" in competition so close the judges require more than 30 minutes to decide the winner.

The first place trophy, $125 check and the state title mean that Worlow will return to Shelbyville next year. The victory also means a trip to Idaho for three days of national competition that will draw more than 200 entries.

Haunted houses galore this Halloween

Get an early start on Halloween this year. Visit a haunted house.

Haunted houses are now open or will be open for thrills 'n' chills seekers. Admission ranges from 25 cents to $2 for a trip through the horrors.

The Variety Club of Chicago's Haunted House has already opened at the Candlelight Shopping Center, Milwaukee and Oakton avenues, Niles. The house of horrors, featuring 10 haunted rooms with monsters and a Witches' Garden Party will continue to scare the public until Oct. 31. The house is open from 7 to 10 p.m. weekdays and from 2 to 10 p.m. Saturdays and Sundays.

Other haunted houses are:

• Campus Life's eighth annual haunted house and carnival opens Monday in Rolling Meadows. Two dollars will buy a trip through the house, open at 7 p.m. nightly until Nov. 1. Persons should go to the Treasury Store parking lot, 1400 Golf Rd. Transportation will be provided to the haunted house. A carnival featuring "The Spider," "The Pendulum" and "The Octopus" will be open for those who need to warm up their adrenalin.

• Schaumburg Park District haunted house, Jennings House, 220 S. Civic Dr., Schaumburg. Open from 5 to 8 p.m. Oct. 25 and 26. Admission is 25 cents.

• Mount Prospect Jaycees Haunted House, Randhurst Shopping Center, Mount Prospect. Open from Oct. 22-31 from 7 to 9 p.m. weekdays and from noon to 5 p.m. weekends. Admission is 50 cents.

• Buffalo Grove Jaycees Haunted House and Carnival, northeast corner of Lake-Cook and Arlington Heights Rd., Buffalo Grove. Open from Oct. 25-31, from 6 to 10 p.m. Admission is 50 cents.

• Wheeling High School's Haunted House, Milwaukee Avenue north of Dundee Road, Wheeling. Open Sunday through Oct. 31 every night from dusk until 10 p.m. Admission is $1.50.

• Hoffman Estates Park District haunted house, the Community Pool, Grand Canyon Boulevard, Hoffman Estates. Open Oct. 29 and 30 from 6 to 9 p.m. Admission is 25 cents and includes a tour of the house, cider and a donut.

Area haunted houses are guaranteed to scare even the biggest trick or treaters.

Antique dealers' show scheduled in Naperville

Fifty-one antique dealers from nine states will display their collections Oct. 31 - Nov. 2 at Merner Fieldhouse, North Central College, Naperville.

More than 10,000 persons are expected at the show and exhibits will include Shaker antiques, lamps and lanterns and a nautical and marine collection.

This year's theme centers on Naperville as a Bicentennial town. Proceeds from the show finance activities of the Naperville Heritage Society.

Admission is $2, good for all three days. Hours are 11 a.m. to 10 p.m. Friday and Saturday and 11 a.m. to 5 p.m. Sunday.

'Mobile One' — bane of real newsmen

by STEVE BROWN
Review

Newspeople, especially the electronic type, are beginning to understand what lawyers and cops mean when they talk about television career exaggeration thanks to ABC's "Mobile One."

The new show, which recently jumped time slots from 7 p.m. Friday to the same hour Monday, stars Jackie Cooper as a television newsman who seems to find his way into three award-winning stories every episode.

Just as the network execs have blown the medical and legal professions out of proportion, "Mobile One" manages to fictionalize and fantasize the job of the reporter. Fortunately the program has had minimal success and may not last through the first 13 weeks of the new season, but it is still causing a stir in newsshops.

A WLS-TV spokesman suggested "discretion is the better part of valor" when asked what the station's newspeople think of the show.

One reporter, who asked not to be identified because of a station edict, suggested reporters there are less than happy with the image portrayed. The reports said the socko-action of the show produced by Jack Webb does little to improve or realistically depict the role of reporters.

"Newscenter 5's" Jane Pauley, who has demonstrated in her first few weeks as an anchorperson that she is more than another pretty talking head, said she is not surprised to see a show like "Mobile One" appear. "Some people think this is a really glamorous job." she said, noting that the job is not all tinsel and bright lights.

WBBM-TV's veteran newsman, Bill Kurtis, however, is not concerned about the show tearing down the professions' image.

"I don't think people view the show seriously," Kurtis said. He does regret that the show fits the mold of other Webb products like "Emergency" and "Adam-12."

"Mobile One" shows a glimpse of fantasy, but unfortunately it also shows a news man getting involved in a story he is trying to report," Kurtis said. "We should be nothing more than observers, invisible men, we should just report on what is happening."

Kurtis laughed about some of the more silly scenes in the show and admitted he has not been able to watch more than half an episode. That is understandable, since Cooper tends to rattle off a lot of cliches about getting "scoops."

Kurtis and other newsmen also see the show as technically unsound. Cooper and his one and only cameraman usually jump out of a car and begin taping a story immediately, something that rarely happens in television news.

"We never send out a one-man crew. Even with the mini-cam (WBBM's video-tape unit), it takes two men to operate" said Kurtis.

While it appears electronic journalism will survive, the chances don't look as good for "Mobile One."

Woman golfer found success on the course and in life

"Babe Didrikson Zaharias had a gifted instinct for knowing when something was right," says actress Susan Clark. "She knew it with her body in sports, she knew it in the way she handled the press, and she knew it with her husband, George Zaharias. Their marriage was truly a great romance."

Miss Clark, who stars with Alex Karras in the two-hour drama special "Babe," to be aired at 8 p.m. Thursday, on Channel 2, undertook the challenging role of this outstanding woman — the nation's top female athlete of all time — and found that this romance was another facet of her remarkable story.

"From the first time they met, there was a great deal of humor and gentleness between them," Miss Clark relates. "It's hard to imagine how two people could have been better suited for each other."

Miss Clark, who has starred in a number of motion pictures, including "Skin Game" and "Airport 1975," takes on an enthusiastic glow when she describes the relationship between the champion woman golfer she portrays and wrestler-turned-promotor George Zaharias.

"George was the first person to see behind Babe's mask of the tough girl from Texas who had it all made," the auburn-haired actress says. "Maybe because he was an athlete, he wasn't threatened by her athletic ability."

"Although he managed her career, he kept a separate identity as a successful businessman," Miss Clark points out. "Both of them knew that success can be empty if you have no one to share it with."

"Bringing this relationship to life may have been one of the most rewarding things about playing Babe," Miss Clark says. "It was easy to see why George's pet name for Babe was always 'Romance.'"

'The kid' finds humor a life saver

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Dane Clark pulled a knife on Sonny Bono and threw him to the floor of the jet airliner as onlookers screamed in terror.

Then the director bellowed, "Cut," and Sonny shambled out of the scene at the ramshackle Culver Studios to flop in a set-side chair.

"Ouch," he said, massaging his shoulder. "I think I'm having a spasm. We decided not to use stunt men in that little tussle. Now I'm not so sure."

Sonny was in the midst of starring in "Murder on Flight 502," a movie of the week and his second dramatic appearance for television. The first was an episode of "Six Million Dollar Man," earlier this month.

A comedian, song and dance man and ex-husband of Cher, Sonny's career has yo-yoed up and down for the past decade. Mostly up.

But he's been on a downer since his own comedy-variety show bellied up last year while Cher's show has been a hit. Happily, Sonny has a contract with ABC to star in a situation comedy series in the fall of 1976.

And if this private life and marital problems are being vivisected by the media, he is none the worse for it.

There is a Peter Pan, ever-youthful quality about Sonny despite his 40 years. Youngsters think of him as a contemporary. Even the director, calling him into a scene, said, "Bring in the kid."

"I can't understand the youth thing myself," said Sonny. "But it's fine with me. Maybe it's because I'm a comedian. And I've always got a grin on my face."

Sonny's grin intensified when a startlingly gorgeous Indian girl, whom he introduced as Sue Coelho — the Bombay Bombshell — undulated to his side and planted a kiss on his cheek.

Like Cher, she is tall, almost painfully slender and very cool. She's also young, about 20. She appeared with Sonny in the "Six Million Dollar Man" episode.

"People still think of me and Cher as a team," Sonny said.

"Personally and professionally. They haven't really separated us in their minds yet. But that's how it is with all show business teams that break up."

"Sooner or later the public will get it straight. It's a severance. After all, we were a team for 11 years."

Sonny speaks fondly of Cher. Her success as a single pleases him.

As for himself, Sonny said, "I have no big master game plan. I'll just continue working in show business — music and television. I'm developing the situation comedy for next season.

"I'll play the underdog again. It's a great comedy character. The little guy bucking the odds is never really a loser because he's eternally optimistic.

"That kind of person goes down but never for the count. They are tenacious. They don't beat you, they just wear you down."

Sonny could have been describing himself. It's as if some special providence had an arm around the little people of the world who seem to get the short end of the stick.

"In addition to the sitcom, I'm producing a two-hour movie of the week for ABC. I wrote the outline for the comedy and I'll star in it.

"If I had a religion I guess it would be humor. It can save your life. At least it has mine. Humor is a sign of strength. Ever notice how Gary Cooper and Clint Eastwood always smile a little bit when things are toughest."

Could you please tell me the date of Elvis Presley's birth? Print his picture, too.

M.H.

Elvis Presley

Certainly. Elvis was born on January 8, 1935.

I understand that Lassie has been spending a lot of time in Key West with Flipper. Can it be possible that these two has-beens are getting together?

Fi Fi

Don't bet on it. Last we heard, Benji had his eye on Lassie. Plus, Charlie the Tuna and Flipper were planning to write, produce and direct a sequel to "Jaws" called "The Last Turbot in Parcelas."

* * *

Please tell me where I can write to actor John Schuck on "McMillan and Wife." How old is he? Name some of his movies, too.

John Schuck, who plays Sgt. Enright on NBC's "McMillan and Wife" series, was born on Feb. 4, 1940.

While appearing in a stage production of "Little Murders" in San Francisco, director Robert Altman spotted John and offered him the role of Painless, the impotent dentist in "M*A*S*H." Following that film, he went on to appear in various others such as: "McCabe and Mrs. Miller," "Brewster McCloud" and "Theives Like Us." His other film credits include: "Moonshine War," "Blade," and "Hammersmith is Out."

Write to John in care of Bresler, Wolff, Costa and Livingston, 190 N. Canon Dr., Beverly Hills, Calif., 90210.

I would like to know the names of the cast of the show, "Star Trek," and how long the series ran.

B.S.

The crew of the United Space Ship Enterprise consisted of: William Shatner as Captain James T. Kirk, Starship Commander; Leonard Nimoy as Mr. Spock, the Science Officer; DeForest Kelly as Dr. "Bones" McCoy, Senior Ship's Surgeon; James "Jimmy" Doohan as Lt. Montgomery Scott, Engineering Officer; George Takei as Sulu, Helmsman and Weapons Officer; Walter Koenig as Ensign Pavel Chekov, Navigator; Nichelle Nichols as Uhra, Communications Officer; and Majel Barrett as Lt. Christine Chapel, Nurse. "Star Trek" ran from 1966-69.

Susan Strasberg, who guest-starred on "Ellery Queen" recently, used to co-star in a TV show. Could you tell me the name of that series? Thanks a lot.

J.M.T.

Susan Strasberg

Of course! Susan used to play Patty Toma in, "Toma," during the 1973-74 season.

Was Eddie Albert in the movie "The Comancheros"? Settle this argument fast.

G.B.

Nope.

Chicago's public TV unveils new season

Channel 11, WTTW, has started its fall television season with new dramatic series and shows for children.

William J. McCarter, vice-president and general manager of the station, said the 1975-76 schedule represents "a new high level of over-all quality viewing."

Among the programs purchased by WTTW for children are "Big Blue Marble," a show about children all over the world and how they play and grow up broadcast weekdays at 4:30 p.m.; and "Dr. Who," a science fiction series for young viewers broadcast weeknights at 6:30 p.m.

Ohter new shows in the fall schedule include:

• "Classic Theatre," 13 television adaptations of the world's greatest plays from the Rennaissance to the 20th Century performed by British casts. The series, broadcast Thursdays at 8 p.m. and repeated Saturdays at 2:30 p.m., includes "Macbeth," "Edward II" and "Candide."

• "Jennie," a seven-part dramatization of the life of Winston Churchill's mother which has already started. The series is broadcast at 8 p.m. Wednesdays and is repeated at 7 p.m. Saturdays. Lee Remick won three best-actress awards in England for her starring role.

• "The Tribal Eye," a seven-part series about tribal societies, their rituals and art. Filmed in 16 countries, the series is broadcast at 9 p.m. Wednesdays.

• "Woman Alive!," film documentaries for and about woman premiering Nov. 4 at 7:30 p.m.

• "Look At Me!," a series of half-hour programs on parenting filmed in Chicago and designed to aid parents in helping their children grow and learn. The show will be aired 9:30 p.m. Fridays starting in November.

• "No, Honestly," a domestic comedy series from England starring a husband-and-wife team who appeared in "Upstairs, Downstairs." The 13-part series starts Nov. 21.

• "Opening Friday . . . at a Theater Near You," half-hour specials designed to both inform and entertain film buffs. Co-hosted by Roger Ebert of the Chicago Sun-Times and Gene Siskel of the Chicago Tribune, the program features excerpts of new movies, commentary and criticism. It will be broadcast Thursdays starting before Thanksgiving.

Joan Fontaine in guest role

Joan Fontaine will make her first dramatic television appearance in 10 years with a guest role in "Cannon."

Chief Old Person on special

Chief Earl Old Person, of the Blackfeet Indians, will represent his people on the Jonathan Winters TV special Jan. 21.

Mike Connors in new series

Mike Connors will play an Armenian-American adventurer in a new television series using his real name, Krekor Ohanian.

Shelby Lyman on chess

I am one of those chessplayers and teachers who has always been irked by the "trap-pitfall" approach to chess. An emphasis on memorizing specific positions in a chess game in which the same position rarely occurs twice, seems to me, to be at the expense of the development of more general abilities.

Yet the study of traps has its place, especially when general tactical themes are the main concern.

Take for example the following position in Diagram 1 from the third game of the Fischer-Larsen match in 1971. Larsen, who has lost the first two games, was tired or demoralized when he made his last move, Q(K)-B1, but that attempted defense of the king pawn was to be short-lived. Do you see why?

The fly in the ointment is the unprotected square at black's QN3. It virtually begs for a white knight to occupy it where it can simultaneously attack the black rook and queen. At the very least, the black queen will be deflected from its crucial defense of the king pawn.

Fischer pounced on Larsen's mistake and played 3. N-R4 (after first exchanging twice with 1. PxP, BxP; 2. NxB, PxN).

Larsen did what he could. On N-R4 he moved his rook to N1, and on 4. N-N6, he moved the queen to the K1 square. Of course Fischer then played 5. BxP check, which gave him a game-winning advantage.

Recently another instructive example occurred between Larsen and Anderssen when once again Larsen was snared as a result of an oversight (see Diagram 2). Larsen's last move R-B2 was a blunder. His last rank is vulnerable. On a check by the black rook, he must be able to move both rook and bishop to his QB1 square, otherwise there will be a checkmate.

Therefore Larsen's queen pawn is not really protected by his bishop. Of course Anderssen, herewith, played 1 . . . NxP and Larsen resigned. Now the rook check reinforced by . . . N-K7 check or just . . . N-K7 check will be deadly.

Our last position in Diagram 3 comes out of the scotch opening. White has just played 1. N-Q5 and threatens, after an exchange of knights at QB6, to take black's king knight.

Black may try 1 . . . BxN?? but white has a spectacular follow-up. He can play 1. QxB!! After 1 . . . NxQ, there would follow 2. N-B6 check, K-B1, and 3. B-R6 mate!!

Brookfield Zoo sets Halloween party

The public is invited to warm up its Halloween costumes Oct. 25 when Brookfield Zoo sponsors its 1975 Halloween Party.

The zoo has scheduled a Halloween hunt from 11 a.m. to 1 p.m. when children will be asked to search the zoo for three special animals and the Witch of the East. Prizes will be awarded for completed hunts.

From noon to 2 p.m. the Children's Zoo will host a party with free refreshments including doughnuts, drinks, candy and bobbing for apples. A costume contest has been set for 2 p.m. with prizes in the preschool, kindergarten through Grade 2 and Grades 3 through 6 categories. Admission to the children's zoo is 15 cents for children; 30 cents for adults.

Northwest sailors plan meeting

Interested sailors are invited to the monthly meeting Monday of the Northwest Sailing Club.

The club meets every third Monday at Lancers Steak House, Algonquin and Meacham Roads, Palatine, at 7:30 p.m. Anyone interested in sailing is invited to help the group make plans for next year's activities. For more information one may call Fred Slater, 358-1520.

Win at bridge

by Oswald and James Jacoby

Frank Thomas goes through a long rigamarole in order to describe how Holmes and Watson bid to six spades.

The bidding in the box shows how they might have reached it if they were using the jump raise as almost, but not quite, forcing.

Holmes counted 12 easy tricks provided clubs broke 3-3. He decided to use a dummy reversal to give him twelve against a 4-2 club break.

At trick two he ruffed a heart. Then he cashed his ace of spades, led a spade to dummy's jack, ruffed another heart, entered dummy with a high club, ruffed dummy's last heart with his last trump, entered dummy with the other club honor, drew East's last trump with dummy's queen while discarding his six of diamonds and would have made seven if clubs had broken evenly.

This play would have failed if East had started with one less heart and one more diamond since he would have been able to discard a club on the lead of the last heart.

If you want to have some fun you can find two other ways to make the contract. Neither suffers from the disadvantages mentioned before but each has certain weaknesses so that we have no quarrel with Holmes' play.

Bicentennial Era The Seafaring Tradition

Issue to honor seafaring

The Seafaring Tradition, one of the occupations which form the basis of the American economy, is honored on the first in a new series of Bicentennial Era stamped envelopes being issued by the U.S. Postal Service.

Released in Minneapolis Oct. 13, the 10-cent envelope features a silhouette of the Norwegian sloop Restaurationen which brought the first Norwegian immigrants to America 150 years ago. First day ceremonies coincided with the visit of Norwegian King Olav V to Minneapolis.

The envelope is available in both standard and business size from your local post office.

Other subjects in this series will include farming, homemaking, craftsmanship and medicine and will be issued individually at later dates.

THE NORTHWEST Philatelic Club will feature a Stump the Experts night at its next meeting Thursday, Oct. 23. Sessions begin at 7:30 p.m. in the Dunton Room of the Arlington Heights Public Library, 500 E. Dunton St. Visitors are always welcome.

Stamp notes
by Bernadine M. Rechner

IN CASE you're ever asked . . . a 14-member Citizens' Stamp Advisory Committee recommends the subject matter and design for new postage stamps. Final approval is the province of the Postmaster General.

Six new committee members have just been appointed to serve for one year. They are:

- Ernest Borgnine, actor and stamp collector from Beverly Hills, Calif.;
- Dr. James Matejka, Chicago, physician and chairman emeritus of COMPEX;
- Dr. Virginia Noelke, historian from San Angelo, Texas;
- John Sawyer, educator from Chicago;
- John Thomas, stamp collector from New York City;
- Dr. Dorothy Worcester, a design specialist from Somers, Conn.

These members have been asked to serve another year:

- Belmont Faries, editor and philatelic writer, who is chairman of the Committee, from Clifton, Va.;
- Steven Dohanos, artist and illustrator from Westport, Conn.)
- Bradbury Thompson, designer and illustrator from Riverside, Conn.;
- James A. Conlon, Director of the Bureau of Engraving and Printing;
- J. Carter Brown, Director of the National Gallery of Art;
- Franklin R Bruns Jr., philatelic curator of the Smithsonian Institution;
- Emerson Clark, engineer and president of the American Philatelic Society from Burbank, Calif.;
- James B Wyeth, artist from Chadds Ford, Penn.

Midwest Postage, Stamp, Coin Show open today in Chicago

Seventy stamp and coin booths will be open today and Sunday at the 22nd Midwest Postage, Stamp and Coin Show at the Palmer House, Chicago.

The show is open from 10 a.m. to 9 p.m. today and from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Sunday.

The U.S. Postal Service has set up a temporary postal station, with a special cancellation for the show and a large exhibit of air mail material will be on display. The United Nations will be represented by a special post office.

Admission is 75 cents for adults, 25 cents for children under 12. Free tickets are available at Chicago-area stamp and coin dealers.

Bicentennial designer to speak

Jack Ahr, designer of the Bicentennial quarter, will be special guest at the Arlington Heights Public Library Monday at 7:30 p.m. for the monthly meeting of the Northwest Suburban Coin Club.

Ahr, Arlington Heights, will sign autographs and answer questions.

Bourse dealing starts at 7:00 and the public is invited.
